The world should know that New York City is seriously considering establishing a municipal light and power plant to sell electricity and gas to the city and to citizens. Some smaller American cities are actually free of taxes because municipal plant profits make taxes unnecessary. That could not happen in New York, and it will be necessary to consider carefully the justice of what might be confiscatory competition. The suggestion is interesting as indicating what is ahead.

Representatives of our government allege, what nearly everybody knew before, that Canadians buy power produced by Niagara Falls for half the price that Americans pay for power from the same cataract. Canadian consumers got for their money 1208 kilowatt hours while United States' citizens, for the same sum, got only 611 kilowatt hours.

Canadians paid two and one-half cents, where United States purchasers paid five and one-half cents. United States domestic consumers averaged $34 a year for electricity, in Canada, $28. In Canada more current was used, because it is cheaper.

We expect to pay more for everything here, but the difference seems too great. Niagara charges nothing for rolling down over the rocky cliff, why not try the experiment of cutting rates, making more profit by selling more? New York City's elevated railroad never made a profit until the fare was reduced from 10 to five cents.

"An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth" may suit old fashioned "capitalistic" countries. It does not appeal to Russia. There, to avenge the killing of one man, Kiroff, Stalin's friend, 28 more have been shot, making a total of 103.

"One hundred and three eyes for one eye, and 103 teeth for one tooth," is a high price, and the number killed may be increased.

There is serious discussion about Russia, that recently "walked right in," to "turn around and walk right out again."

William Green, head of the American Federation of Labor, says Communism threatens to become dangerous, with most of the danger in New York.

It was shown at a Washington hearing that "dividing up" is not all of modern Communists' practices. They also collect. Employers and workers both testify that intelligent Communist management includes collecting substantial contributions from payrolls and wages.

Rumania's Parliament discussed a young lady with red hair named Magda Lupescu, for whom, Rumanian King, Carol, has shown some partiality. It was suggested, in defense of King Carol, that "his critics are too weak to be immoral."

That new view of immorality would surprise several well-known characters, including the good St. Anthony. It was not understood that the man who said he could "resist anything except temptation" was a person of unusual strength.

The unexpected is interesting, and is the essence of humor. Two old gentlemen, failing in their attempt to strike oil, retired to the poorhouse. In the poorhouse backyard they found first a good coal deposit, then struck oil.

Louis Mosenza, of New Jersey, went hunting deer, walked twenty miles, found nothing. At night he found a large deer hanging in his kitchen. It

Japan Scraps Navy Pact

PACIFIC FORT LIMITATION DEMANDED

By Associated Press

Tokio, Dec. 19—The Japanese government acted today to scrap the Washington naval treaty of 1922 and expressed confidence in its "readiness to meet any situation which might arise" as a result.

A notice of a demand for limitation of fortifications and naval bases in the Pacific was given.

In a ceremony regarded as historic, the powerful Privy Council recommended abrogation of the limitation pact to Emperor Hirohito, whose speedy approval is expected. The action in effect constitutes abrogation.

Many Japanese leaders regard the step as the most momentous this country has taken since it entered the World War.

Through the denunciation, the Washington treaty will expire December 31, 1936. For 12 years the pact has held naval programs of the world's great sea powers in check. Building races have been predicted to result at its end.

The action marked victory for the Japanese navy, which has carried on a vigorous four-year campaign for equality.

Lost Schaffner Wife Is Feared Kidnaped

By Associated Press

Carmel Cal., Dec. 19—A report that a screen had been ripped from a rear window in the home of Ms. Eliot Boke Schaffner spurred authorities today in their search for the missing Chicago woman in the belief she possibly may have been kidnaped.

The report was made to the office of Sheriff Carl H. Abbott by a member of the missing woman's family as the sheriff led a large voluntary posse in a hunt for Mrs. Schaffner.

The screen apparently had been torn from the rear window recently, the sheriff's office was informed.

Officers were proceeding on the theory, however, that Mrs. Schaffner, wife of Joseph H. Schaffner, a director of Hart, Schaffner and Marx, might have wandered away from her Carmel home, as a result of a nervous breakdown.

Schaffner was enroute here from Chicago to aid in the widespread hunt over the rugged country surrounding this artists' colony.

Two Dobermann Pinschers were brought here from Berkeley and Sheriff Abbott hoped the dogs might be able to pick up the trail

UTILITIES SAG ON PUBLIC POWER PLAN

As a result of new government moves against the power industry utility stocks and bonds sagged today. In New York, Consolidated Gas common was off $1.87; Brooklyn Union Gas was down $2, and Public Service Company of New Jersey lost $1.62.

Dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange featured a $5 loss by Edison Electric.

By Associated Press

Washington, Dec. 19—President Roosevelt and Mayor LaGuardia of New York laid the groundwork today for possible construction of a municipal power plant for the metropolis.

This took place after Mr. Roosevelt had said at his press conference he was ready to authorize the use of government funds for loans to New York or other cities for municipal plants if proof was forthcoming they could be operated cheaper than private concerns.

The President had termed "private power wanting to sell power to New York.

MAY SERVE STATE

LaGuardia said the proposed plant also would serve as the first unit in a network for state distribution of power.

The mayor left the White House to confer with Secretary Ickes, the public works administrator, on the feasibility of a city power plant.

Asked if a municipal plant had been definitely decided upon and would be built, the mayor replied:

"I believe the action of the utility companies in New York City in applying for higher rates today will do them no good."

Basil Manly, a member of the Federal Power Commission, said that investigation of the rates charged the federal government by private power companies in New York State had proved them to be too high in some instances.

The federal ball has not been paid since July pending the inquiry.

Manly joined in the conference today.

Having crossed the continent to plead for a parole for George E. Gilbert, Norfolk prison camp inmate, with whom she says she lived as "common law" wife in California, Miss Dora Millicent Miles, above, told the Massachusetts Board of Pardons and Pardons today: "I love him, and I believe he still loves me."

'I Love Him and Believe He Loves Me'

This is George E. Gilbert, known as a "model husband" in California, but brought back to prison in Massachusetts as a wife deserter.

Miss Miles said that she met Gilbert W. Parker and they became sweethearts. She said that he told her of his wife and children and promised to get a divorce and marry her. She did not know that he was a convict.

I LOVE HIM

When asked as to interest in him now, she said:

"I love him, and I believe that he loves me. Arrangements are being made for a divorce in Massachusetts and if this is granted then we will marry. I would like to return to California with him."

Gilbert's wife, according to the testimony brought out at the hearing, neither favors nor opposes the petition for a pardon. She is said to have started divorce proceedings financed by the Miles family with provisions to be made for the support of the children.

TOLD OF FAMILY

Miss Miles said:

"Three months after we started keeping company," she said, "she told me that he had a wife and three children in Massachusetts."

Attorney J. Paul Keefe asked:

"You were sweethearts then?"

"Yes, we were," she said. "I loved him. He was looked up to by all his associates in business and by his other friends. He was employed by an oil company and his employers showed their confidence in him by the fact that each day he collected from $400 to $500 for them.

"He did not drink. He did not smoke. He had no bad habits. Five nights out of every week he attended school to get a degree as a chiropractor.

"When I started from Los Angeles for Boston I was told by his former employer that when he returned there would be a job waiting for him. I want to return with him as his wife."

EXPECTED A DIVORCE

Miss Miles said that she was 18 when she first met Gilbert. A year after that she said that she left home telling her family that she was going to marry him. They lived together about three years, she stated. She expected he would get a divorce.

"Do you think that he did right by you?" she was asked by Matthew W. Bullock, a member of the board.

Miss Miles smiled and nodded her head affirmatively.

James E. Grimes, attorney for Mrs. Gilbert, said that all Mrs. Gil-

Wedding Bells Were to Peal For Prisoner

After journeying across the continent from Los Angeles, red-haired Dora Millicent Miles, 21, today appeared before the Parole Board in the State House and asked it to act favorably on the parole petition of George E. Gilbert, who escaped from Norfolk State Prison camp.

Gilbert, a Jamaica Plain resident, was serving from six to eight years for kidnaping, and when he escaped he left a wife and three children. He went to California and started life anew, but was detected and brought back, although called a "model" citizen.

POLICE SHOOT BOY IN CHASE

After a chase of nearly two miles through South Boston, a boy, who said he was Walter King, 18, of Mercer street, South Boston, who was driving an automobile that had been reported stolen, was shot by police today near the L street bathhouse on the Strandway.

The bullet passed through his right knee. He was taken to the Carney Hospital.

The car was sighted by Sergeant John Devine and Special Officers Arthur Eunson and Robert Theiss at Ward street, South Boston, in the Andrew square section.

Only a minute before, the officers heard a police radio broadcast of a stolen car from in front of 385 Broadway, South Boston.

Shot in Heart Kills Lawyer

A SUICIDE? FRIENDS SAY NO

Three hours before he was to attend an anniversary mass for his dead mother, Attorney James P. Mahoney, 38, widely known in Lynn and Swampscott legal and fraternal circles, was found today in Fox Hill road, Nahant, killed by a shot through the heart.

A few feet from the tuxedo-clad body was a .32 caliber automatic, out of which one cartridge had been discharged. The shell was under one arm.

An official declaration by Medical Examiner Nathaniel P. Breed that Mahoney was a suicide brought an immediate storm of protest from friends of the young attorney and a further investigation by police.

The friends claimed that Mahoney must have died by accident—even though it might have been by his own hand. His distracted wife in-

PLEAS TO KING ARE IGNORED

HULL, England, Dec. 19—After appeals to the King and Queen had failed to save her, Mrs. Ethel Little Major, gaunt 42-year-old mother of two children, was hanged today in Hull Prison.

A black flag was hoisted over the penitentiary when she went to her death, the first woman to be executed in England in eight years. Until the end she maintained she was innocent of poisoning her husband.

Three hundred curious persons milled about outside the prison as she mounted the gallows. The trap was sprung at 9:00 a. m. (4:00 a. m., eastern standard time). Two grim-faced policemen paced back and forth, keeping the crowd on the move.

FINAL PLEAS FAIL

Final urgent appeals for clemency by Lord Mayor Stark of Hull, the last addressed to Buckingham Palace, were fruitless.

MAINE CRIPPLE PLEADS GUILTY IN KILLING OF YOUNG FIANCEE

POLICE PROBE HIS STORY OF DEATH PACT

Auburn, Me., Dec. 19—With the same calm and unconcern that he related to police details of the killing of his sweetheart, 17-year-old Joan Eslin, Willie Bouthilette, 23, crippled former taxi driver, today pleaded guilty to a murder charge in Lewiston municipal court.

Judge Edward B. Parent ordered Bouthilette held without bail for the grand jury.

Bouthilette's only apparent concern, officers said, was his consciousness of his physical condition. It is necessary that he grasp his ankles with his hands when he walks. He has been deformed several years from infantile paralysis.

PROBE HIS STORY

County officials, seeking to break down Bouthilette's story that he shot the girl at her own behest, revealed strange new features in the case.

Not one bullet, the death bullet—but several, were fired from the rusted, cheap pistol used in the killing, they declared.

But police said frankly that they did not believe his story, which was, that because he had only one bullet, he was unable to complete his own part of a suicide pact.

Another discovery, they declared, was that there was a bottle of carbolic acid in Bouthilette's machine. It was pointed out that, had Bouthilette wanted to join in death the pretty girl who has been his sweetheart for four years, it would have been easy.

Search was being made of the underbrush near, and all roads from, the lonely Loon pond section of Webster where the shooting allegedly took place.

BROUGHT BODY IN CAR

Bouthilette, police said, has changed several features of the tale he told when first he drove up to the police station here and announced dramatically:

"There's a dead woman in my car outside. I might as well tell you I shot her. She's my girl friend."

At that time according to officials, Bouthilette said the girl had brought him one .38 caliber cartridge taken from her father's supply of ammunition.

But police belief now that several bullets were used in the gun gave a queer twist to this angle, and it was hoped that this might be cleaned up if the other bullets were found and identified.

Ancients' Ban on Broker Off

William F. Bartholomew, wealthy Boston broker, was restored today to active membership in the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company from which he was suspended by order of a court martial board last month.

The suspension, which was reported to have been imposed for one year, was lifted as secretly as it was ordered.

An alleged incident during the Ancient's visit to Ottowa with Governor Ely as their guest, last September, was basis for the suspension.

Two other members of the company resigned for the same reason, but Bartholomew, a lieutenant of musileers, demanded a hearing.

JAPAN ACTS TO SCRAP NAVAL PACT OF 1922

Nolan had approached him to favor the plaintiffs in a land damage suit on trial in Middlesex superior court.

Judge Henry T. Lummus interwere seated around the horseshoe formed council table in order of their court rank when they unanimously approved the report of a special committee recommending abrogation.

They rose and bowed profoundly as his majesty entered the great audience hall in the Imperial Palace and took a seat at the head of the table.

In solemn tones Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma, vice president of the Privy Council, read the committee's report. The deliberations, carrying out Japan's firm policy of securing equality on the high seas, were brief.

ACCEPTS CONSEQUENCES

In his speech, Baron Hiranuma said:

"The Imperial Government desires continuation of clauses of the Washington treaty relating to limitation of fortifications and naval bases in the Pacific Ocean, but if such clauses are terminated the government is prepared to cope with such a situation."

Assurances were made that the government would strive to conclude a new naval treaty replacing the Washington treaty, with its 5-5-3 ratio odious to Japan—a new treaty guaranteeing Japan "national security."

NOTE TO U. S. NEXT WEEK

Official notification probably will not be given the United States until the week between Christmas and New Year's, although the actual date was not set.

A letter of notification will be called Ambassador Saito in Washington after it is drafted at a Cabinet session Friday.

Tokio will move to have the United States and Great Britain join her in setting a definite date for resumption of the London talks, which are preliminary to the 1935 naval conference. March is a date which may be suggested.

France and Italy also are signatories to the Washington Naval Treaty. In addition to limiting naval armaments, the treaty provides that the United States, Britain and Japan will not add to fortifications and naval bases in specified territories and possessions.

Heaviest Blow to Naval Cut Plans, View of U. S.

By International News Service

Washington, Dec. 19—By deciding to carry out its threat to denounce the Washington Naval Treaty, Japan has delivered the greatest blow ever dealt the cause of world disarmament.

Such was the view held in authoritative quarters here today.

Official circles recalled the recent warning of American Ambassador Norman H. Davis at London that denunciation of the treaty by Japan would open the way for unrestricted naval competition among the world powers, create international suspicion and threaten the peace of the world.

The United States, it was recalled, sacrificed 24 capital vessels to make the treaty possible in 1922.

rupted proceedings long enough to issue a capias for the arrest of Thomas Walsh, a defense witness, who could not be found in the courtroom when he was wanted for identification purposes. A court officer said he had appeared earlier.

Walsh was the third listed "among the missing" at the trial.

Search for Miss Helen Haggerty failed today, and court permitted her previous testimony to be read in part at the rehearing.

Court was informed the other absent witness, John A. McArdle, who has been ill, has been located and is returning to Boston to testify, so that no continuance will be made necessary on that score.

McArdle is chairman of the Massachusetts claims investigating committee which, with the Boston Bar Association, is prosecuting the charges. The defense has called him.

Miss Haggerty is the alleged sweetheart of John J. Donnelly, convicted jury-fixer with whom Mayberry is accused of conspiring. Her absence reversed the situation existing during the first hearing which resulted in dismissal of the charges against Mayberry. Then Donnelly was missing.

In her earlier testimony, she said she was Donnelly 12 or 15 years as an investigator and denied the truth of a story she had told the investigating committee, declaring Police Inspector Haggerty told her to tell it.

This story, which she repudiated at the first hearing, was that she had gone with Donnelly and a man named Nolan to Cambridge to see a man named Polack. Her read testimony contained a denial that she knew Nolan or any George F. Mahoney.

Abandoned, Sinking; Next Stop Is Davy Jones' Locker!

There she goes! Down at the stern, her fires long since quenched by sea water, the freighter Usworth lurches shudderingly toward a sea-bottom grave. Of her crew, 15 have perished, 9 have been saved by a lifeboat crew from the S. S. Ascania, standing by with other rescue ships. This remarkable photograph was made from the deck of the Ascania. Rudderless and helpless, the Usworth was swept and pounded by mountainous seas for a day and a night before her officers and men were taken off. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

MOTHER OF 2 IS HANGED

Home Secretary's office, which replied tersely:

"The decision of the Home Secretary is already known."

The jury which convicted Mrs. Major had recommended clemency.

No one in Hull seemed to take much interest in her case except the lord mayor, as Mrs. Major's home was in the little village of Kirby-on-Bain, where a 15-year-old son, a 9-year-old daughter and her aged father live. The father and son came here to bid her farewell last night.

Mrs. Major was arrested while her husband's funeral service was in progress as the result of an anonymous letter to authorities, accusing her.

At 8:30 o'clock last night a small group of watchers saw the governor of the prison, Captain Ed Roberts, walk from his home across the street and knock at the prison gate. Two warders swung them slowly open and Roberts entered.

CHAPLAINS ARRIVE

A few minutes later two prison chaplains, Canon Arthur Berry and the Rev. W. M. Fraser, dressed in black, arrived.

This was all the watchers outside saw of the proceeding until the small black flag fluttered.

The chaplains remained in Mrs. Major's cell until the wardens appeared to take her to her death, promptly on the stroke of 9.

With Mr. Fraser leading the way and reciting prayers, she was removed to the execution shed, a few yards away. The entire proceedings required only a few minutes.

Two documents constituted the notice placed on the gates signifying the law had taken its course. One was signed by the undersheriff and other witnesses. The second, signed by the prison doctor, simply said he had made his examination and found she was dead.

A petition in Mrs. Major's home town, hastily signed by 108 of the 205 inhabitants, was presented late Monday after the reprieve had been denied.

"No Fault to Find," Says Shaw of Hanging

By Associated Press

London, Dec. 19—George Bernard Shaw, confirmed opponent of capital punishment, still found no fault today with the execution of Mrs. Ethel Little Major at Hull for murder.

The futile effort to prevent the hanging of a woman left him cold.

"If it had been a man," the famous author told the Star with characteristic gruffness, "no one would have suggested that he should be reprieved.

"Women and mothers are not exempt from the extraordinary law.

"She has been hanged. Well, that's all right. I have no fault to find with it.

"I cannot see a redeeming feature in the Major case. If the appeal had been successful, the wretched person would have been sentenced to a life of penal servitude and nothing more would have been heard of her."

Rescuers Tell How 17 Died in Ship Horror

By Associated Press

Halifax, N. S., Dec. 19—The rescue ship Ascania left Halifax for New York at dawn today, leaving all that was left of the crew of the S.S. Usworth.

They were only nine men, of the 24 who sailed on the Usworth. The nine were saved last week from the sinking Usworth in mid-Atlantic.

Fifteen of their mates had died; two others — seamen aboard the Belgian freighter, Jean Jabot—had lost their lives in the attempt to take them from their wrecked ship 600 miles off the Azores, and the nine who lived had reached safety only after days of battle against one of the Atlantic's worst storms in years.

For days their craft had been drifting helplessly. She was sinking when a boat's crew from the Ascania took of the last of the men who had set out aboard her from Montreal for Cobh, Ireland.

"Had it not been for the bravery of the Ascania's men, none of us would be here today," Captain John J. Reed of the Usworth declared.

Thanks went too to third officer E. J. R. Pollitt, who piloted the Ascania's lifeboat across 100 feet of storm-lashed water and back with its human cargo.

Pollitt and his oarsmen had volunteered for the perilous rescue after they had seen 14 men die in the oil-coated seas as a lifeboat from the Jean Jadot capsized coming back from the freighter.

Before they got back, three more were to die. They leaped too soon from the deck of the Usworth, and were lost in a moment as the giant waves, lashed by a 80-to-120-mile wind, swept them far astern.

Captain Binnet and Pollitt were honored for their bravery and goodseamanship last night when a banquet was tendered them and Captain Reed of the Usworth by Halifax harbor commissioners.

Getting the men out of the boat on their safe return from the sinking vessel was described as "a difficult and dangerous proceeding" by the rescue skipper. "The boat was rising and falling alongside," he said, "with a vertical range of 20 feet and pitching about in all directions."

WEALTHY WIFE DISAPPEARS

of the missing woman, who disappeared early yesterday.

Apparently clad only in night gown, bedroom slippers and a fur coat, she disappeared between midnight and dawn yesterday from her isolated home on the southern tip of this artists' village.

Released only Monday from Monterey Hospital, where she was taken 10 days ago for a rest, fears were felt Mrs. Schaffner may have wandered into the ocean surf of Carmel bay or into the tidal mouth of the Carmel river, both close to her home.

Her husband, Joseph H. Schaffner, a director of Hart, Schaffner & Marx, was flying to Carmel from Chicago. The socially prominent couple divided their time between New York, Chicago, Carmel and San Francisco.

Airplanes were to circle over the bay and the surrounding woods this morning.

Possibility of kidnaping was discounted by Sheriff Carl Abbott, who pointed out that kidnapers could not hope to escape from the narrow peninsula with a victim.

Summoned by the town's fire siren, search parties comprising practically every able-bodied man on the peninsula scoured the woods and rugged hills throughout the night.

Prominent artists and writers, residents of this "model" artist town, were among the searchers.

Boy Scouts and American Legionnaires made a house-to-house canvass before they joined the posses in the woods.

Mrs. Schaffner's disappearance was discovered yesterday morning when a maid took breakfast to her room only to find it deserted.

FISCH CITED IN MAINE PLOT

(Other Bruno Story on Page 6)

Portland, Me., Dec. 19—For two months in the summer of 1933, the wife of a prominent Portland attorney was placed under a guard against kidnaping at the hands of a man described by a Bridgton carpenter as Isador Fisch, from whom Bruno Richard Hauptmann said he received the Lindbergh ransom money.

This was made known today by Ralph M. Ingalls, former prosecutor for Cumberland County and counsel for Ellis Sanborn, 40, the Bridgton carpenter, who married a Boston governess in 1927 and became estranged a few years later.

The new disclosures followed an alleged plot by the man described as Fisch, in which an attempt was to have been made to snatch a girl from a Maine girl's camp.

Sanborn's attorney said he first learned of the Bridgton carpenter's suspicions after the Portland attorney had intercepted a warning note from Sanborn to the attorney's wife.

The former prosecutor said Sanborn was at first reluctant to talk.

SANTA CLAUS WILL FIND HOLLYWOOD AT HOME

Christmas in Hollywood is a season for family reunions. The stars, of course, drop work for the day, even though it is their busiest season. Parents and other relatives pour into the city for a visit.

Mae West, whose father, brother and sister are visiting her, will have a family dinner at home.

Jean Harlow, whose divorce suit is now in the courts, will spend the day at home with her parents.

WOOER! Napoleon a MASTER!

HIS OLD LOVE NOTES BARED

CALLED MARIE 'DEAREST' IN NO TIME AT ALL

Paris, Dec. 19—Napoleon's sentimental preoccupations, scribbled amid battle to his Empress Marie Louise, were being brought to light for the first time here as experts at the National Library pored over a newly acquired collection of more than 300 hitherto unpublished letters from Napoleon.

Because of Napoleon's scrawl, the yellowed letters, which were bought in London, are most difficult to transcribe. They contain a curious mixture of French and Italian dialects. It will be several months before all the texts are completed.

In the first letter, dated March, 1810, grandiloquent phrases reveal Napoleon as the ideal imperial wooer. He addresses Marie Louise as "madame" in the first letters, but the evolution of his romance with the haughty, blonde Austrian archduchess is shown in the later letters addressing her "My Dearest."

'Have Good Time'

In subsequent letters he urges that she enjoy herself during his absence. Throughout the Russian and German campaigns the man of war found time to correspond. From Russia he wrote:

"I am on horseback from 2 a. m. on. I sleep only two hours daily, and review my troops the rest of the time. I beat the Russians yesterday—an army of 120,000 men. The victory was wonderful, but I had plenty of casualities."

Then, switching to his sentimental preoccupations:

"Your letters are as charming as you, and show the beauty of your soul. Love me as I love you, if that is possible."

Returning to the role of the man of war:

"I have abandoned Moscow. It took 20,000 men to keep that city."

'A 1000 Kisses'

He promises the separation shall be short:

"You know how much I love you. I must hear you are well and happy. Goodbye, my love. A thousand kisses."

Other letters show how Napoleon sought to have Marie Louise use her influence with her father, the Austrian emperor, to whom he refers as "Papa Frantz."

After the battle of Dresden, he indirectly chides Marie Louise with "Pa Frantz's troops were never worse" and later:

"Tell father we would rather die than take a shameful peace."

Then came Napoleon's defeat and the letters show the man of war writing tenderly of his concern for the empress' health and safety. The last letter, from Elba, on August 23, 1814, states:

"I long to see you and my son."

KAY CAN "GET BY" FOR $5,000 DRESS CASH

KAY FRANCIS

$5000 Enough for CLOTHES

ALL YOU NEED, INSISTS KAY

BEST DRESSED WOMAN SPENDS $20,000

(Copyright, 1934, by International News Service)

Hollywood, Dec. 19—Film beauties are not surprised that it costs Mrs. Harrison Williams, New York socialite, $20,000 a year to win Parisian acclaim as the best-dressed woman in the world.

But, take it from Kay Francis, any woman can be smartly gowned for all occasions on a fourth of that amount.

"Naturally, they can't dress like Mrs. Williams," says the Warner Brothers star. "She is a friend of mine and I don't think there is any doubt she is the ruling queen of fashion today.

"But women who can't afford to spend that much money needn't be discouraged. If they know clothes, they can be completely chic on $5000 a year."

On this amount, the star contends, a woman can mix in society go to a number of parties, travel, have a complete wardrobe and always be in style.

The only item not included in Kay's budget is furs.

"And, of course," adds the star, "bizarre fashions would have to be avoided. It would require conservative dressing."

But then Kay, who has rated most of the lists of filmdom's best-dressed women, believes in conservative fashions anyway.

NEEDS $20,000 YEARLY FOR CLOTHES

MRS. HARRISON WILLIAMS

FORGOTTEN!

Pittsburgh, Dec. 19—Pittsburgh's magnificent new $6,000,000 postoffice was built after months of careful planning, but it took Mr. John Citizen only a few minutes to discover a troublesome defect in the granite giant.

There are shiny, gilded depositories bearing bronze signs, "Special Delivery," "Air Mail" and "Letters in Bulk," but no "Letter Drop" designed for the fellow who has only one letter to mail.

The plain truth, says Postmaster Turner, is that the architects forgot all about it. He promised to do something about it right away.

DANCING IN CHURCH O. K. TO PASTOR'S DAD

Rev. D. F. Bradley, of the Pilgrim Congregational church in Cleveland does not believe that the introduction of a barefoot dancer into his church as an inducement to church attendance would be effective.

He admitted, that his son whose parishioners saw such a dance Sunday, knew what he was doing, a divorce.

SOME CATCHER!

Ernest V. Sargent, of Seabrook, N. H., told Judge Harry R. Dow in Salem Probate court that his wife, Mrs. Lottie M. Sargent, of Haverhill, was the pitcher, and he was the catcher.

Among the items she pitched at him during their 15 years of marriage, he said, were a bean pot, a frying pan, an ashtray, a horseshoe, a soap dish, a stove shaker, a bunch of celery, a large handbag, a dishcloth, a stick of wood and a broom handle. He was granted a divorce.

All He Needs Is Job From Her Spouse

By International News Service

Detroit, Dec. 19 — The case of Earl H. Hyatt, 28, charged with disturbing the peace in the vicinity of a friend's home seemed simple until Hyatt got explaining.

The friend, William Muir, was also in court.

"The trouble," Hyatt said, taking a deep breath, "started last Saturday while Mrs. Muir and I were drinking beer in a beer garden. Mrs. Muir was flirting with some fellows sitting nearby, so I slapped her.

"I took her home and she told her husband. He came over to my house and we argued some, then we got into a fight."

Hyat hesitated a minute, then continued:

"You see, judge, I am going to marry Mrs. Muir as soon as her husband gets me a job so I can support her. He's willing to divorce her. He lets me take her out every night and that's why I figured I had a right to slap her for flirting . . ."

At this point Judge John A. Boyne threw up his hands.

"Enough, enough!" he cried. "I turn this puzzle over to the probation department."

NO OIL BUT CURE-ALL FROM HIS WELL

By Associated Press

Brampton, Ont., Dec. 18—The well dug on his farm in hopes of striking oil, has instead produced mineral water which Charles Campbell claims to be both a cure for rheumatism and a worthwhile heating solution for automobile radiators.

Also, says Campbell, he gave some to a horse which "went off its feed" and the animal regained its appetite. Sam McClure, a neighbor, he adds, uses the water to melt snow on sidewalks.

FUND PUZZLE

When Jonathan Maynard Parmenter, of Wayland, died in 1921, he left $200,000 to be used as a fund to build a hospital in Wayland or vicinity. The un dfnow is $245,000, and not enough to build a self-supporting hospital. A partial self-supporting institution would be a burden on the taxpayers it is declared. The Harvard Trust of Cambridge, trustee of the fund, has asked Middlesex Probate Court what should be done with the money.

In the Pink! President Health O. K.

By Associated Press

Washington, Dec. 19—The doctor says President Roosevelt is in better physical shape than at any time since entering the White House and is ready for the Congressional session ahead.

That was the report given today by Dr. Ross T. McIntyre, naval physician in constant attendance on Mr. Roosevelt since he took office.

Almost daily swims in the White House pool, frequent vacations and planned routine have kept the President fit, Dr. McIntyre said.

"I don't suppose there is any man in the country who follows a routine more closely than does Mr. Roosevelt," he added. "Only very special occasions interrupt his schedule."

The President will be 53 next January 30. He weighs in the 180s. His weight, Dr. McIntire said, doesn't vary more than four pounds a year.

Greed for Pirate Loot! Sent 5 to Island Death

SQUABBLES OVER TREASURE BARED BY RICH EXPLORER

Guayaquil, Ecuador, Dec. 19—A greedy squabble for possession of a buried pirate treasure hoard kindled the quarrels that brought death to the "Empress of the Galapagos," four of the men she ruled on Floreana Island, and an Ecuadorean sailor.

This was intimated today in fragmentary reports reaching Guayaquil concerning the findings of an expedition to Floreana led by Captain G. Allen Hancock, wealthy Los Angeles explorer.

Radio advices from the Steamer San Cristobal stated Hancock has doubtless been given the location of the treasure by Frau Dora Koerwin, sole survivor in the island colony's drama of four men who died for one woman.

Baroness Eloise Wagner De Bosquet, the tyrannical woman who ruled the colony from the muzzle of a revolver she carried strapped round the silk underwear that was her imperial garb, is dead.

Dr. Friedrick Ritter died after eating a chicken that had been mysteriously poisoned.

Today for the first time a motive was provided for the suspected murder of Ritter.

Before his death Ritter disclosed the hoard's whereabout to Frau Koerwin, his companion. Today Frau Koerwin was reported to have given this information to Captain Hancock, who sailed for the Galapagos aboard the yacht, Velero III, intending to seek a a solution to the mystery of the five deaths on Floreana.

CURLEY NAMES BODFISH AID

Governor-elect Curley today announced appointment of William A. Bodfish of Hyde Park as an assistant secretary.

Bodfish served in the United States Consular Service in Spain for eight years. More recently, he has been in the advertising business in Boston.

The Governor-elect also stated Richard D. Grant, former newspaper man and radio broadcaster, who was appointed as secretary a month ago will be chief secretary.

Curley conferred today with Carl A. Raymond, state budget commissioner.

The Governor-elect will announce other secretarial appointments later this week.

This afternoon, Curley attended a meeting of the Younger Democrats of Massachusetts in the Hotel Bellevue. James Roosevelt also attended.

Newspaper 'Ads' Show Increase

New York, Dec. 19 (INS)—Trend of newspaper advertising in November turned sharply upward, overcoming four-fifths of the usual seasonal loss from October levels, according to figures made public today.

November advertising measured in the newspapers of 52 leading cities by media records amounted to 105,968,808 agate lines, a 7.2 per cent increase over November, 1933.

Gloria Is Going Home! Christmas With Mother

GLORIA VANDERBILT

MRS. VANDERBILT

Two 'Santas'

BOTH AUNT AND PARENT TO GIVE HER GIFTS

By Associated Press

New York, Dec. 19—There's going to be a big Christmas tree at 49 East 72nd street next Tuesday, a tree ablaze with candles and with its bristly boughs bent with gifts; Gloria Vanderbilt's coming home!

"It's wonderful that I'm going to have Gloria for Christmas," said the "poor little rich girl's" mother, Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, today.

"I'm going to start at once to make it a big day—a big day for Gloria and a big one for me."

An appellate court decision announced yesterday has made the reunion possible. Sometimes, when little girls are very, very rich, solemn judges have to be consulted about what chimney Santa Claus can come down without violating the law.

For ten-year-old Gloria the holiday promises to be a double-barreled—at least a two-trest—Christmas. Christmas Eve she will hang her stockings at the fireplace in the home of her aunt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, and she will awaken Christmas day to delights in presents left there.

But she must not linger too long, for at 10 o'clock in the morning the Whitney car is to drive up to the door of 49 East 72nd street, and the little heiress to "Beagle" Vanderbilt's millions will be escorted to her mother's door. There, the mother and daughter will have eight hours together.

At 6 o'clock the Whitney car will drive up.

The court decision yesterday provides that the child, over whose custody a bitter court fight is being made, spend week-ends, and Christmas, with her mother, and remain with her aunt the rest of the week. The arrangement, however, was made contingent upon Mrs. Whitney's consenting to it, the point being made that without Mrs. Whitney's consent the appeal of Mrs. Vanderbilt, which is now before the court, might be prejudiced.

Business Heads Agree On U. S. Co-operation

By Associated Press

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Dec. 19—Business leaders of America have virtually decided to advocate co-operation with the government without specifically naming the Roosevelt administration.

Convened here as the "joint business conference for recovery," some 90 top executives found themselves in accord today on several principles which were being summarized in a preamble extending the olive branch in broadest terms.

The executives were expected to carry the results of their deliberations to the White House immediately, to indicate the business viewpoint before Congress convenes.

The business men further were prepared to offer their aid to the President in combatting extreme legislation.

They expect also to offer a plan for recovery, but it remained to be seen whether this plan will state specifically or generally what business believes it can do.

John Raskob of General Motors led his colleagues on a committee which he heads through an almost all-night session in an attempt to bring accord out of disorder.

Substitution of the dole for the present work relief plan appeared as certain recommendation in the report to be submitted to the general session.

According to a spokesman, however, the business men have no thought of asking the government to change immediately from work to direct relief or to cancel any of the present PWA program.

Rather, it was explained, they feel the dole should be regarded as a complement to unemployment insurance, which, in the reported opinion of the majority of the business men here, is certain to be adopted in the future.

ONE FOR G. O. P.

The State Senate control went over to the Republican party by the narrow margin of one member through the decision handed down by the full bench of the Supreme Judicial Court.

The court ruled that in the First Essex senatorial district, Albert Cole of Lynn, Republican, who was defeated in the first count in the recent elections, was actually elected, as shown by the recount.

Joseph B. Clancy, Democrat, also of Lynn, had brought his protest to the court on several counts, alleging irregularities in the actions of the Board of Election Commissioners in their handling of the recount.

The court, while admitting that several technical details were blurred, gave as its opinion that no actual violation of the statutes was indicated, and that the essential provisions were complied with.

BONUS BILL DUE TO BE PASSED IN CONGRESS

By International News Service

Washington, Dec. 19—Passage of the Soldiers' Bonus Bill by both branches of Congress was forecast today by Congressional leaders after conferring with returning legislators.

Opinion was divided whether the Senate would override an anticipated Presidential veto.

That the House will vote to override was believed certain.

Republican forces in both branches will vote overwhelmingly to cash immediately the 2,300 million dollars balance on the veterans' adjusted compensation certificates, it was indicated.

There will be a secret conference of Republicans in the Senate immediately after Congress convenes January 3, when the bonus question will be discussed.

A sharp fight is under way in the pro-bonus forces over the method of payment. Inflationists are insisting upon the printing of 2,300 million dollars in Treasury notes, which would be backed by the gold and silver reserve as well as the general credit of the government.

Opposing forces contended that the bonus should be paid through orthodox methods—bond issues and taxation.

Move to Pay Bonus From "Seigniorage"

By Associated Press

Washington, Dec. 19—A new plan designed to help pay the soldier's bonus and strengthen the position of silver is to be brought before the silver bloc of the House soon after Congress convenes.

Proponents say the government could get part, at least, of the money to pay the bonus immediately by tapping the silver "seigniorage" in the treasury. This is the "profit" the government makes by selling $1.29 an ounce as the price of silver bought from miners, but taking half that sum as "seigniorage."

Supporters say it would have a three-fold result: Provide money for the bonus, stimulate silver buying and counteract any fear in business and financial circles that the bonus might mean printing press money.

BRAHMS EPIC ON PROGRAM

By ANN AMES

A distinguished soloist at the third of Tuesday afternoon orchestra concerts in Symphony Hall yesterday afternoon provided a concert of unusual interest and merit.

The programs in the series are drawn from music by Schubert, Schumann and Brahms, and following the intermission Bronislaw Huberman, eminent Polish violinist, contributed what must undoubtedly record itself as the most brilliant and striking performance of the Brahms violin concerto as has been heard in Boston concert halls.

Surely no other artist can have captured the very fibre and feeling of Brahms as has this great artist, before whose wizardry the tremendous technical difficulties of the Concerto dissolved into nothingness. Mr. Huberman is a virtuoso of the old school. Composure does not attend him. Yet once embarked upon the opening Allegro, he lavished upon this great work his very soul. Here is playing with vitality, with fire and brilliance. The long and difficult cadenza just before the close of the first movement was miraculously done, yet not only in the maze of technique was Mr. Huberman's art outstanding.

It is said that the composer himself told Huberman, then a boy of 13, that he "should not have played the cadenza so splendidly." That was in Vienna, in 1896, and since then Mr. Huberman has enjoyed a long and distinguished career on concert stages. The cadenza is still, in his hands, shining and splendid music, preceding the quiet adagio, again played with superb tone and lovely line, and the more brisk and equally brilliant finale. An enthusiastic audience recalled the soloist many times.

The remainder of the program held the familiar "Unfinished Symphony," by Schubert, and Schumann's Overture to Byron's Manfred.

Medford Aldermen Answer Rum Defi

Medford's board of aldermen answered the defi or the city's liquor dealers, who refused to continue the Sunday closing program, which was in effect for a dozen weeks before election, by unanimously favoring the adoption of the tavern act.

On December 4 the aldermen asked the liquor dealers to continue the Sunday closings. The Liquor Dealers' Association's answer was to vote to re-open on Sundays.

Notice of the adoption of the tavern plan will be sent today to Medford's licensing commission.

BRUNO MAY ASK PRESIDENT AID

By Associated Press

Flemington, N. J., Dec. 19—The threat of an appeal to the White House entered the case of Bruno Richard Hauptmann today.

His chief defense counsel, Edward J. Reilly, charged last night that two federal agents had been transferred to the West so they could not testify for Hauptmann in his forthcoming trial for the death of the Lindbergh baby.

He said if necessary he would appeal to President Roosevelt personally to have the agents returned to New Jersey jurisdiction, adding it is "apparent Hauptmann is not to get a fair trial."

Reilly said Federal Agent Thomas E. Sisk had been sent to Houston, Tex., and Agent Enos Sandberg had been transferred to Salt Lake City because they refused to be "coerced" into testifying against Hauptmann. He charged that they knew Hauptmann was "brutally beaten" and that the case against him "was not and is not cleared up."

Upturn in Business Shown in Reports

Increasing evidence that many large industrial and business organizations are showing a definite gain in revenues for 1934 over 1933 is to be found in annual reports covering the past fiscal year, now being made public.

Many industrial leaders have hopes for further expansion and additional revenue gains;

Henry W. Cook, president of the A. E. Nettleton Company, Syracuse, said:

"Our business this year has been the best since 1931. Factory shipments and also aggregate sales at 33 Nettleton stores throughout the country, show a gain of 16 per cent over 1933. Indications point to even better results next year.

"People are spending more freely than at any time in the last four years, and there is in evidence a tendency on the part of consumers to get back to quality merchandise.

"Nettleton factory activity has been picking up since September, with operations now on a five-day-week basis, and number of employes normal."

BIGELOW HOME SOON IS HOPE

Fear that Dr. George H. Bigelow may have wandered a long way from Boston in a state of amnesia, and doubt that he will be found in time to join his family for Christmas is expressed by the corps of Boston detective working on his disappearances.

The search, however, is still going on, aided by moving pictures of the missing Massachusetts General Hospital executive, being shown at Massachusetts movie houses throughout the state.

CAPITAL HONORS MRS RUMSEY

By Associated Press

Washington, Dec. 19 — Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and many other capital residents today altered all plans to pay tribute to Mrs. Mary Harriman Rumsey, chairman of the NRA Consumers' Board, who died last night. She had been Mrs. Roosevelt's intimate friend from debutante days.

Mrs. Roosevelt cancelled an engagement to attend a morning musicale, one of the outstanding social events at which Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Mrs. William Howard Taft and Mrs. Dolly Gann were scheduled to appear.

The President's wife also put off an afternoon trip to New York for her annual Christmas appearance at charity events in order to attend funeral services for Mrs. Rumsey at 4:30 p. m.

RED PLAGUE SPOTS IN THE SCHOOLS

Parents Should Keep Their Children Away From Them

—Says R. W. CHILD

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD
Noted Author and Former U. S. Ambassador to Italy

Choose your colleges and universities.

Choose your private schools.

This is the American parents' RIGHT TO KEEP THEIR CHILDREN out of institutions where there is LEPROSY, either physical or intellectual.

Freedom of thought, freedom of speech, is an American tradition.

Today many of our colleges and schools are SQUIRMING with UN-AMERICAN movements coming from planted nests of green young COMMUNISTS and FLOSSY PROFESSORS with a thousand ideas for DESTRUCTION OF CAPITAL, DESTRUCTION OF THE FAMILY, DESTRUCTION OF RELIGION.

R. W. Child

Masked under the robes of LEARNING, it is in fact a dose of HALF-BAKED COMMUNISM which many of our children are getting.

Free-Love Peril

The MANAGEMENT of universities, colleges and schools are perplexed as to how much SUPPRESSION can be used and still maintain the American tradition of FREEDOM OF THOUGHT.

THAT DILEMMA NEED NOT WORRY PARENTS.

PARENTS who are awake have a simple remedy:

KEEP THE BOYS AND GIRLS OUT OF THOSE INSTITUTIONS WHERE INVESTIGATION SHOWS RED DEGENERACY IS FOUND IN FREE-LOVE, COMMUNISTIC GROUPS OR IN PROFESSORS "TRYING TO BE DIFFERENT."

"Trying to be different" often means an attempt to CUT THE GIZZARDS out of all that has been BUILT UP DURING CHILDHOOD by the PARENTS.

Sending boys and girls where respect for the law, respect for the Constitution, respect for marriage, respect for honest business and savings and labor, and respect for religion, all taught by loving parents over years, are to be HAMSTRUNG by "MODERN" is a reflection upon the good sense of fathers and mothers.

No one wants to "surpress ideas" but WHEN YOUTH GOES TO LEARN FROM TEACHERS AND LIVE WITH OTHER STUDENTS, parents may wish to be sure that neither teachers nor students are spreaders of measles or rebellion.

Red Plague Spots

IF PARENTS WOULD KEEP YOUTH AWAY FROM PLAGUE SPOTS, WHY NOT FROM RED PLAGUE SPOTS?

The best way to clean our colleges and schools of GREEN AND RED ASININITY is for PARENTS or THOSE WHO PAY FOR EDUCATION to investigate from top to bottom the educational bed in which youth is going to sleep for several years.

If the place is one that is UNCLEAN, JUST DO NOT ENTER YOUR BOY OR GIRL.

There are plenty of other institutions which are still CLEAN.

Sleeps Now

By Associated Press

Sterling, Ill., Dec. 19—Mrs. Harold McKee yawned once last night and went to sleep.

For more than eight days her strange marathon yawning affliction has necessitated the use of sedatives to bring sleep. But last night the yawn was natural and physicians said they believed her well along the road to recovery.

Dr. H. L. Pettit announced she would leave the hospital today or tomorrow.

B. & M. VICTOR IN RATE FIGHT

By International News Service

Washington, Dec. 19—Rates of the Boston and Maine Railroad for transportation, including store-door pickup and delivery service, are not unreasonable, unjustly discriminatory or unduly prejudicial, the Interstate Commerce Commission held today.

It accordingly dismissed the complaint of the Motor Truck Club of Massachusetts.

The commission said the road's store-door service was still in the experimental stage. As it gained experience since the inauguration of thi sservice, it has modified its rates, charges and regulation governing it.

500 IDLE DOPE ADDICTS HERE A CRIME PROBLEM

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

Boston has between 400 and 500 narcotic addicts and 80 per cent of them are unemployed—forcing them into crime to secure the money with which to feed their craving.

This was the revelation today by Charles A. Burrows, federal supervisor of narcotics for the New England district, who is one of the army of officials now trying to crush down pedlars and dealers throughout the nation.

If Boston had an institution set aside for the cure of narcotic addicts, Burrows declared, many of the users would voluntarily commit themselves for a cure, but as it is now they fear to seek a cure because of the criminal record which threatens.

"It costs an addict from $6 to $8 a day to keep himself in narcotics," said Burrows. "Where does the man or woman addict get the money? Well, they get it through stealing, shoplifting, holdups and other forms of crime. They steal anything they can get their hands on.

"I have known cases where addicts have gone into houses and factories and stolen gas ranges and converted them into cash.

WORLD OF THEIR OWN

"We have in Boston between 400 and 500 addicts. And of this number 35 per cent are women. They live in a small world by themselves. In other words, they do business among themselves and won't recognize any outsider. Around them is an invisible wall, set up by the ravages of narcotics.

"We have a situation in Boston that is unparalleled in the country. We have in this city, what we call, hometown addicts. It is pretty hard to get to them, although they manage to communicate with each other.

"The South End is the first place an outside addict goes to when he comes into the city. But, even at that, it is difficult for him to make contact with a dope user unless he is well known.

"The dope situation in this city is like a continual merry-go-round. We send the addicts to institutions and when they are released, they start all over again. It is just like a cycle, moving in periods, with usually the same offenders members of the clique.

"There are 77 addicts at Deer Island and some of them have been sent there many times. In Boston, we have no narcotic floaters, as they have in Chicago and Detroit. When things get hot in Chicago, addicts jump to Detroit, or vice versa.

"The dope situation is a serious problem and it is about time the public realized the fact. There is no adequate hospitalization program for them nor any definite program of rehabilitation. When they are caught they are sent away for involuntary treatment. If we had an institution set aside for the cure of addicts, I feel certain, in saying that many of our users would voluntarily commit themselves to be cured. What they fear most is that criminal record, and so they hide away a long as they can.

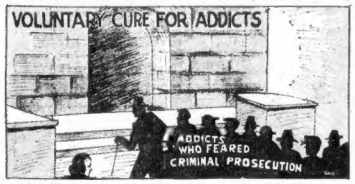
"At Deer Island, we have no adequate facilities to handle the addicts. Naturally, they try to devise ways and means of getting the stuff. Addicts should be isolated, they should be kept apart from others in order that the others may not be contaminated.

"The Bridgewater institution, from my observation, has a system not entirely satisfactory in the care and handling of addicts; and that is the only institution where there is no definite program of rehabilitation.

"The problem is one over which we have no direct control, since our function is purely one of enforcement of law. It is one which should be taken care of by the state, which should provide hospitalization. Why not set aside 100 beds in some part of the Boston City Hospital for this new treatment of an old curse?

"I believe the problem of narcotics is one of the most serious problems the country has on its hands. Which brings me to another phase of the question! While I cannot establish the number of physicians, who themselves are addicted to narcotics, I can say that there are a goodly number in New England.

"They are a class of patients with whom we come in contact only through accident, for physicians are mighty cagey in protecting themselves when they are dope users."



SPRINGFIELD JUNK DEALER HANGS SELF IN CELLAR

Springfield, Dec. 19—Morris Shapiro, 47, was found dead early today hanging from a beam in the cellar of the junk shop he operated here.

Shapiro apparently had stood on a chair while adjusting a rope noose about his neck and then kicked the chair out from under him. Medical Examiner Charles J. Dewey pronounced the death a suicide.

ABOUT FACES by ART MOGER

NOW PLAYING AT RKO KEITH MEMORIAL THEATRE

Wednesday!

Today is the third in the week's "About Faces" series by Art Moger. Visit the famous palace of entertainment, the new RKO Keith Memorial Theater where the screen features three of today's Hollywood stars. They all appear in "Wednesday's Child," a stirring drama, which should appeal to both young and old alike. The remaining "About Faces" character is that of a regular RKO Keith Memorial performer.

With all of these clues it should be a cinch to clinch one of the $25 in weekly cash awards as offered by the Boston Evening American. Here's what you must do:

After visiting the RKO Keith Memorial Theater you will find the clues in today and tomorrow. Fill in the squares beneath each drawing with the proper identifications. These squares equal the number of letters in the names of these illustrious performers. Use the letter "N" as a guide and mail your entire week's solutions to: The About Faces Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston, Mass.

Remember to do your Christmas Shopping EARLY!

"About Facing" pays!

Barbara Holmes gives her patrons a card of introduction from the bureau to the agency or person offering the rental.

CASASSA GETS FIRST DEFEAT AS O'BRIEN WINS IN REVERE

City Treasurer James M. O'Brien administered the first political defeat Mayor Andrew A. Casassa has ever received to take over his post as mayor of Revere by a 2012 majority with 7568 votes to 5556.

The largest vote ever cast in Revere, 13,284, was nevertheless one of the most orderly in the city, the state troopers and municipal police loaned by Lynn having little difficulty keeping the election day crowds in order.

In the other fights for municipal posts several of the outcomes were so close as to make records a virtual certainty.

The office of city treasurer, left vacant by the candidacy of O'Brien for mayor, was contested by Thomas U. Kelley, a former councilman.

Ernest Ackes, who has been city tax collector for 13 years, lost his position in a two-way contest, Lawrence J. Gillis winning the major upset of the election.

Four councilmen-at-large were elected, the third seat winning by a record certainty.

Thomas M. Sorrentino was voted in with a count of 116 winning over Hervey J. Clark, last of the losing candidates, who polled 1479.

Mrs. Mary E. Strong, the only woman candidate, and a former member of the school committee, was defeated, receiving only 3918 votes.

Fall River, Dec. 19—Alexander C. Murray, city manager under the Class D charter, was elected mayor here over former Mayor Edmond P. Talbot, in the first election to be held under the new charter form.

The result was close, Murray polling 19,956 against Talbot's 17,185 votes, a majority of 2771, in a balloting that brought out 37,424 of the city's 45,000 registered voters.

The support given Talbot by Joseph L. Hurley, the present Lieutenant Governor-elect, who wanted the former mayor to succeed him to the post made vacant by his election to a position in the affairs of the Commonwealth, was not enough to offset a strong feeling against Talbot holding two positions.

Appointed trustee of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway company a month ago by Gov. Ely, Talbot receives a salary of $5000 a year, his opponents said, which should make him ineligible for another $5000 job.

He said that divorce proceedings had been started and bond placed with the probate court for the support of the children.

TELLS OF BOOTLEGGING

Gilbert was sentenced in 1929 in the Norfolk Superior Court. Atty. Joseph Keefe said that he had been bootlegging prior to the sentence and that the bootlegging operations had been financed by many influential men in Boston.

A dispute between Gilbert and some of his companions arose over a split, the attorney continued, and in order to get some money that he believed was due him, Gilbert kidnapped one of his friends.

"There was nothing in the case," the attorney said, "such as a child kidnapping or ransom like the Lindbergh case. Miles thought that he was getting a raw deal adn as there was no lawful remedy for such a situation, he took the law into his own hands."

SEEKS PRIVATE HEARING

Attorney Keefe then asked the board to hear him in private as to the relations between Gilbert and his wife, saying that he hoped to show that Gilbert was not the usual type of wife-deserter.

He stated that he wanted to explain the facts in private because the four children, the oldest 16, are subjected to shame because of the notoriety surrounding the case.

Joseph H. Gilbert, a brother of the petitioner, said that the family had been forced to move repeatedly because of the jibes of playmates of the children.

He stated that his mother, now dead, made a dying request to him that when George returned he was to aid him in every way possible.

"That is what I am trying to do," he said.

THOUGHT OF DIVORCE

He also said that when his brother left Massachusetts, he believed that his wife was going to divorce him.

"What do you think of your brother now?" he was asked.

"I think that there is more good than ba din him," he replied.

Bullock felt that Mrs. Gilbert should be present at the hearing, but she evidenced no interest whatever in the petition.

The petition was taken under advisement by the board.

Youth, on Witness Stand, Confesses El Cash Holdup

One of five men on trial in Suffolk Superior Court for the Elevated armored truck holdup in September suddenly changed his plea to guilty today and made a dramatic courtroom confession involving the others.

Leo Hayes, the defendant, admitted the robbery and named the four other defendants, Michael "Spike" Hennessey, John Hoar, Samuel Schwartz and John Samarkian.

Hayes' statement from the witness stand, held by the government to be the first true story of the crime, also accused Hennessey of plotting to "bump off" Hoar.

Trial began before a jury in Judge John M. Gibbs' session yesterday. The robbery occurred September 27 when $2050 was stolen from three Elevated collectors near the Dudley street station.

Soon after the hearing began today Hayes consulted Assistant District Attorney Frank Hickey and then was taken to the witness stand where he pleaded guilty to armed robbery and made the following statement:

"Several days before the stickup, I met Hennessey and as a result of conversation kept an appointment to meet him near the Dudley street station at 7:00 o'clock on the morning of the stickup.

"When I arrived, Schwartz, Samarkian and Hoar were with Hennessey in a car. Hennessey said, 'We're waiting for an armored truck.'

"I got in the car but got out when the truck arrived and as I did, Hennessey said: 'Someone pick up that shotgun.' So I did.

"Hennessey remained in the car and the rest of us walked over near the White Tower Lunch in Dudley street. When the door was opened on the armored truck, I warned the guards and Schwartz, and Hoar took the guns from the three guards.

"They were walked to a nearby alleyway and I returned and put the shotgun in the car and went back to the armored truck and removed four coin boxes and some money bags.

"Then we all got back in the car and they drove me to Brookline Village and I went home to Cypress street and to bed.

"Two days later I met Hennessey and he told me they got $1800 on the job. He gave me my share, in a paper box, all change. I hid the bag in my cellar.

Won't Build Plant

William Barry, who sought permission to erect an asphalt mixing plant in Cummins highway, Mattapan, near Calvary Cemetery, withdrew his application today after representatives of the cemetery association had made formal protest.

LAWYER'S DEATH HELD SUICIDE

slated that he couldn't have willingly taken his life.

Asked later if he thought the shooting might have been accidental, Dr. Breed repied:

"Well, of course the man had been drinking. But he shot himself, there's no doubt about that."

Police pieced together the events of an evening that ended at the Eagle Motor Club in Nahant.

From Pinto Reidy of Washington street, Peabody, a druggist, they said they learned that Mahoney had left the automatic in the course of an argument at the club.

Other friends of Mahoney's claimed the young lawyer never had firearms. State Detective William Dorsey, who questioned several of the half dozen men who were rounded up by Nahant police, said Mahoney might have died by accident as he thrust the automatic back into his inside coat pocket.

FIGHT IN CLUBHOUSE

Police learned that there had been a fight at the Eagle Motor Club, in which a number of prominent lawyers and other professional and business men had been involved, and which took place but a short time before the body was found.

Attorney Mahoney, who was a law partner of Representative Cornelius Dorgan, had offices in the Security Trust building in Lynn.

His wife was the former Miss Miriam Gaffney of Lynn, and their home is in Humphreys road, Swampscott. There are no children.

Attorney Mahoney was found at 6:15 a. m. in the Fox Hill road section, not far from St. Thomas Catholic Church, Nahant.

John Dolby, sexton of the church, made the find. He notified Nahant police and Patrolmen George Burnett and Michael Healey took Mahoney to the Lynn Hospital.

At 9 a. m. he was to have attended the anniversary mass for his mother at St. Mary's church, City Hall square, Lynn. His sister, Miss Marjorie Mahoney, who lived only a few hundred yards from the club in which the fight was staged, attended the mass and did not know until later that her brother was dead.

Some friends pointed out that Mahoney might have been dressed for his sister's house when he fell and met death with the discharge of the automatic.

President Roosevelt, in an admirable letter to Orville Wright, who, with his brother, Wilbur, was the first that ever flew in a heavier-than-air plane, expresses well the importance of that achievement, presenting, the President said, "such tremendous possibilities that our experts have not been able as yet to tell their limitations or the full scope of their usefulness."

Perhaps President Roosevelt will write the proper authorities in army, navy and those that spend public money, suggesting that it is time for some one to walk up and try to realize part of the "full scope" of airplane usefulness.

It would be too bad if some foreign country should demonstrate that "full scope" above Washington, or a bigger city.

Catholics and Protestants in Germany unite in a pro Deo, "for God," movement to counteract the "godless Bolshevik propaganda."

At the same time various religious authorities in Germany quarrel among themselves and the head government seeks to "Germanize" the Christian religion, annoyed perhaps by the idea that the "one God" should have been given to the world by the Jews.

Perfection, it seems, does not belong even to an Aryan, Nordic or whatever you call two-legged creatures with yellow hair and blue eyes. Germany discovers vile immorality in Berlin, 600 men have been arrested in the "better morals drive," many of them in the storm troops.

Arms Probers Hear Plan of War Time Press Censor

By International News Service

Washington, Dec. 19—Strict government censorship of the American press can be imposed in wartime under a bill already prepared by the War Department, Senator Bennett Clark (D.) of Missouri told the Senate munitions inquiry today.

Clark placed in the inquiry's record a copy of the proposed bill, which would be sent to Congress for enactment at the outbreak of war. Under it, Clark said, the President could declare paper and printer's ink to be necessary wartime materials and license their use. This, he added, would constitute a censorship of the press Said Clark:

"It would give the President absolute control of the press. I could write a proclamation in 40 different ways to impose that censorship."

Colonel C. T. Harris, army ordnance expert, agreed the bill would empower the President to deprive a newspaper of "its material necessities."

Pierre DuPont, head of the great powder company, pointed out that newspapers would be protected by the "freedom of the press" clause of the constitution. Clark, however, argued the President could get around that clause and, in any event, the newspapers would have to go to court to obtain their rights.

Clark announced he would introduce the War Department's eight preparedness bills as soon as Congress convenes. He declared his opposition to a plan that called on Congress to enact hastily a mass of legislation after war is declared. He said he preferred to set up the whole war program in time of peace.

FLORIDA VICTIM IS BOSTON MAN

Lake Wales, Fla., Dec. 19—Authorities today said they felt certain a man killed in an automobile accident near here Sunday was John H. Austin of Boston and the $7,000 in cash found on his body was part of the $7,500 Austin was charged with taking from the Boston wholesale liquor firm of which he was comptroller.

Sheriff W. W. Chase of Polk county, said Miss Loyola Davis of Miami had identified the body as that of Austin and had produced a marriage certificate to show she and Austin were married about eight years ago.

He quoted the woman as saying she and Austin had been separated nearly four years.

Authorities here gave Boston police a description of the man, and Captain Stephen J. Flaherty of the Boston detective bureau said apparently the man was Austin, for whom police there held a warrant, charging larceny of $7,500 from the F. E. Jackman Company.

H. J. Patterson, auditor for the firm, also said he believed the accident victim was Austin.

Sheriff Chase quoted Miss Davis as saying Austin came to Miami recently from Boston seeking a reconciliation, but she refused his proposals.

An airplane passenger ticket from Boston to Miami, a receipt from a Miami hotel and a receipt for the purchase of the wrecked automobile were found on the man's body.

NEW DEAL MUST STAY—RICHBERG

By Associated Press

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 19—Donald R. Richberg warned in an interview published today by the Yale Daily News that the abandonment of "our new mechanisms of co-operation" would be "suicidal folly."

"It is time for sober analysis of the gains and losses, and the strength and weakness of our co-operative efforts," the National Emergency Council director told the undergraduate publication. "We must continue them; and we must improve them.

"It will relieve us from many complicated worries if we can eliminate fanciful legal issues and discuss the emergency measures of the federal government largely on the basis of the economic wisdom.

"We have made a great advance in 20 months, but there are still millions of unemployed; and it would be a suicidal folly now to abandon our new mechanisms of co-operation and to let nature take its ruthless course."

LEADER OF SAAR POLICE QUITS

Universal Service

Saarbrucken, Saar, Dec. 19—Major Arthur Hemsley, British inspector of the Saar volunteer police force, resigned here in consequence of the incident Sunday involving one of his officers, Captain James Justice. The resignation was accepted.

Major Hemsley, distinguished British former army officer of Colonel Geoffrey Knox's personal staff, will succeed Hemsley.

El Gets $195,575 In Tax Judgment

An opinion in favor of the Boston Elevated Railway, seeking to recover $195,575.20 in taxes for the year 1930 paid to the United States Government, was returned by Judge Hugh D. McLellan in federal court. He ruled that dividends could not be taxed as income received by a corporation.

DIME BOTTLE TO FOIL BOOTLEGS

The latest discouragement to bootleggers, who make a practice of collecting handsomely labeled liquor bottles and refilling them with a very inferior product, comes from the ingenuity of a Boston inventor, Benjamin Chasin. He has perfected a bottle that contains a coin—a dime. To get it, the customer must break the bottle.

The F. H. Jackman Company of 160 Washington street, North End, through its president, Joseph M. Linsey, today announced his firm will use this new container for its products just as soon as possible.

He pointed out the bottle has the approval of the Treasury Department, which is more than a little concerned about a 60 per cent drop in liquor tax revenues, due largely to the activity of bootleggers and stamp counterfeiters.

The Jackman firm will fill the new bottles with its Cosmopolitan Club Blend of seven-year-old Canadian whiskey, thus assuring its patrons they are not receiving a bogus product.

Are Men "Made of Snips 'n' Snails 'n' Puppy Dog Tails" and Women of "Sugar and Spice"?

By Elsie Robinson

"What are little boys made of?
"Snips and snails
"And puppy dogs' tails.
"That's what little boys are made of.

"What are little girls made of?
"Sugar 'n' spice
"And everything nice.
"That's what little girls are made of."

Remember that old nursery rhyme? Sure you do. Now comes that wise and much beloved lady, Kathleen Norris, to assure us it's true.

"Spiritual development," says she, "means little to men; they shake away the idea of it. Humility, simplicity, service, forgiveness, patience don't belong to the male character."

Elsie Robinson

Women, on the other hand, she maintains, are chuck full of noble impulses. Neither threats nor rewards are needed to make them Be Good. It's their favorite indoor sport. But they just waste time if they expect men to appreciate that.

So a wise bride should realize right from the jump that she's tying up to a low-down, ornery runt who can't be expected to be decent anywhere, any time, anyhow.

MEN'S OWN FAULT

That's Kathleen's idea, and she's sticking to it. And it's a safe bet that 999 out of every 1000 females will agree with her enthusiastically and clip her sentiments for use in the next domestic brawl. But if they do, it's the men's own fault.

Who started this "holier-than-thou" contest? The Big Boys themselves. Way back in the tin pants days, when they began putting women on pedestals and calling them "ministering angels," "God's greatest gift" and similar sugar talk.

Did the lads really believe it? Not a word! If you want to know how men actually feel about women, read the LAWS they made concerning them—laws which gave the ladies, maybe, an equal break with the family cow.

However, that pedestal idea wasn't as dumb as it seems, for it kept the misses contentedly out of the way, while Friend Husband followed his own devices—which were plenty.

TRY AND DO IT!

But it was a dearly bought liberty. For, having once told the lady how superior she was, can the gentleman now convince her that she's just one of the gang and should act accordingly? Try and do it!

So today we have one-half the world firmly believing that the other half's a Dirty Dog. Which, of course, is piffle. When it comes to morals, there isn't a snitch of difference between the sexes.

There's no such thing as feminine or masculine virtues or vices. Men have no monopoly on courage or fair play—women none on tenderness or purity.

When it comes to Dishing Dirt, no pool room has anything on the average Bridge Table. And, on the other hand, some 95-pound wisp of a woman can often make a Man Mountain look like a jelly bean through sheer grit.

Because of their different training and experience, men and women gauge behavior differently, but that's no proof that the woman's standard is better than the man's.

Who's to judge which is the greater menace to a home—a husband's philandering eye or a wife's gibbing tongue? A man's silliness or a woman's spitefulness? For every feminine ideal while the man violates, the woman outrages some masculine code.

Which fact, thank Heaven, most youngsters know. For, whatever its faults, this modern Equality has certainly done the race one great favor by making the kids realize that humans are all of a piece regardless of their sex—and there never yet was a Goose who had anything on a Gander. Or vice versa!

At least, that's how I see it. But maybe you differ? Then how!

ROOSEVELT IN POWER CURB

By Universal Service

Washington, Dec. 19—President Roosevelt moved here to break the grip of private power interests on New York city and slash lighting costs for government buildings throughout the nation.

The President invited Mayor La Guardia and Maurice P. Davidson, commissioner of water supply, gas and electricity, to confer with him, probably today, on establishment of a public power plant in New York. This project, financed by PWA funds, would supply current to municipal and federal buildings in New York.

$50,000 Stamp Profit to Byrd

(Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service)

Washington, Dec. 19—Stamp collectors who have subscribed for covers from Little America have poured $50,000 into the coffers of Admiral Richard E. Byrd.

For every one of the more than 100,000 covers shipped to the Antarctic base of the Byrd expedition for cancellation, Admiral Byrd receives 50 cents. In addition, the stamp-fancier pays three cents to the Postoffice Department for the stamp.

Admiral Byrd pays nothing toward costs of transportation or for the salary of George F. Anderson, stamp cancellation expert, who sailed recently for Little America to clear some 85,000 covers. This is being met by the department.

Another Flight Into the Stratosphere

Washington, Dec. 19 (US)—Another stratosphere flight in a balloon of three million or more cubic-foot capacity will be made next June under the joint auspices of the National Geographic Society and the Army Air Corps, Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the society, announced tonight.

As in the flight of the "Explorer" last summer, the Geographic Society will finance the expedition and manage the details, while the Army Air Corps will supply the flying officers and will direct the technique.

'beacon hill'

By Betty Alden

IT WOULD SEEM THAT the gay young debs have had a surfeit of balls and dances by the looks of the social calendar for the next few weeks . . . but we know that these budding daughters are still eager to preen and primp in their sweetest robe de styles, tuck a tiny nosegay from their best beau in their bodice and fly away to a merry ushers' dinner and then to the ball to charm the susceptible stags and have HIM murmur in her ear that she never looked more dee-vine . . . The trouble is that Christmas vacation cuts the stag line practically in two with so many of the eligibles, who inhabit those palatial dorms across the Charles, scattered to the far winds for the holidays . . . and what is a ball without a line of unattached masculinity to cut in on the girls every few steps . . .

MARY MORISON

The only debutante dance of the holidays will be the Christmas party which Mrs. Guy Currier is giving on Thursday for those two inseparables, Mary Morison and Mary Fuller . . . After dinner at the Fullers' Beacon street home, the party will go on to dance and supper in Mrs. Currier's Spanish ballroom . . .

The college debs will be home for this party, and it looks as if the Boston boys would shine with no competition from out-of-towners . . . Following these festivities there will be several presentation luncheons and teas for the college buds with men tabooed until after the vacations are over . . .

Betty Downes will be feted at a luncheon on Friday, and the next day a Smithite, Margaret Tyng, will come out at luncheon in Jamaica Plain . . .

Mrs. John Stevens to Go Abroad

SPEAKING OF DEBS reminds us that Louise Stevens, who will be one of the pets of next winter's buds, is studying in Europe this winter . . . her mother, Mrs. John Stevens of Beacon street, will sail soon after the New Year to join her until the summer when they will return to open their Manchester home for the warm months . . .

Jabberings over the tea cups reveal the news that Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Simonds, 2nd, will move to Detroit to live after January first . . . They are closing their beautiful Commonwealth avenue home, which adjoins the home of Mrs. Simonds' mother, Mrs. Phineas Sprague . . . They will be greatly missed in social circles, and especially in the affairs of the fashionable Norfolk Hunt, where Dan has been an ardent polo enthusiast . . .

Mrs. John T. Wheelwright, who has been the guardian of the wealthy Binney girls, has changed her habitat since the marriage in October of Georgette Binney . . . For the winter she has accompanied Mrs. Lester Leland, as her companion, to California . . .

Marian Moffat, one of the prettiest and most feminine of last winter's debs, and her fiance, Thomas D. Welch, are hoping that wedding bells will peal for them around Easter time . . .

The Freddie Crockers are keeping the home fires burning at Richmond court, in Brookline, while the bridegroom pursues his studies at the Harvard Business School . . . Mrs. Crocker is the former Mary Jane Bigelow . . .

Young Set Attends Lecture

THE YOUNGER SOCIAL SET was well represented in the group of ushers who greeted the patrons of the lecture on Oriental Rugs at the Empire Ballroom of the Vendome yesterday morning . . . One of last spring's most beautiful brides, Mrs. John Cunningham Willis, the former Deborah Hall, headed the usherites, with the assistance of Miss Ernestine Hills wearing a dark woolen street dress, Mrs. Gibbs Sherrill, Miss Barbara McKissock, Miss Betsy Byron, whose rust woolen dress boasted a knotted ascot tie; Mrs. Alan Weatherby, one of society's truly lovely blondes, who boasts justly of her youthful husband's job at Harvard . . .

Two girls who will soon join the ranks of the young marrieds, Miss Milda Allen and Miss Marion Nottage, were also on hand to seat the large audience which attended with the double purpose of ascertaining what valuable information the speaker had to offer on the subject of rugs, and of contributing to the vacation camp for blind girls, which benefited from the proceeds.

Kathleen Maynard, one of the season's budding femininity, and Connie Turner were others interested in the work done for these unfortunate blind sisters . . . In the audience Mrs. Charles F. Toppan, Mrs. Edward E. Allen, Mrs. Harold A. Pitman, Mrs. Bowen Tufts, Mrs. Walter Whitehead and Mrs. Arthur T. Lyman sat with rapt interest . . .

MISS ERNESTINE HILLS

Young Folk in Roles of Toys on Stage

FOR THE PAST SEVERAL years Mrs. Dorothy Whipple Fry has kept her five children out of holiday vacation mischief by directing them in a children's play. This year Mrs. Fry has included not only her own children but several other society children.

These future Junior League and Hasty Pudding actors, each taking the part of a toy, displayed their embryonic talent this afternoon at Mrs. Fry's home on Warren street, Brookline.

The children who took part were those of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Paine, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Powers and Mr. and Mrs. Basil Gavin. Also the little Whittingtons, the little Frys, and the little Damon boy.

Miss Cushman on Program

THE PRESIDENT'S DAY meeting of the Colonial Daughters of the Seventeenth Century will be held in Providence in the lovely old Colonial home of Mrs. George Hall, January 7.

Many Bostonians wil attend the meeting and enjoy the beauty of Mrs. Hall's old home with its antique furnishings. Miss Elizabeth Cushman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Cushman of West Newton, will give a costume song recital. Mr. Rafael Mertis is coming over from New York to accompany Miss Cushman, and will also play several solos.

Society Notes

MR. AND MRS. PRESTON WRIGHT of Cincinnati, accompanied by the little Miss Marjorie Harrison, Mrs. Wright's daughter, will come East and spend New Year's with Mrs. Wright's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Crane Shepard in Boston.

First Year at Bellarmine Academy

CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENT for the Sen Fu Club will feature a series of short plays at the League House on Arlington street, on Thursday evening. Miss Dorothea Shaughnessy, talented pupil of the Curry School of Expression, will direct a one-act play of the "Finding of the Infant," in which 25 small girls will take part. Miss Marion Marsh will assist on the committee.

A PROFITABLE AND delightful first year was celebrated by the Bellarmine Academy of Boston at the Commonwealth Country Club this morning, where Reverend Robert A. Dyson, S. J., delivered a lecture on "Babylonian Myths." The academy, under the leadership of Mrs. Joseph H. Shortell, has presented a series of instructive talks and a period of round table discussions on world topics, to members and their friends, who comprise a prominent group of Greater Boston women. The two remaining lectures in the series will be given on January 9, "The Teaching of Modern Universities"; January 16, "Modern Humanistic Influence."

ANNOUNCEMENT HAS been made of the marriage of Miss Mary Evelyn O'Neill, daughter of Mrs. Martha O'Neill of Arlington, and Mr. Charles Greenhalgh, son of Mrs. Charles Greenhalgh, of Fairview, N. J., by Rev. James F. Grimes, of St. Agnes' Church. They are planning to live in Miami, Fla., until March, when they will reside in Fairview, N. J.

MRS. PHILIP J. O'ROURKE of Belmont will be hostess on Saturday evening to a group of the gay young married set, at a Christmas party. Guests will include Mr. and Mrs. Vincent L. Greene, of Dorchester; Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Garraghan of Belmont; Mr. and Mrs. Stephen W. Higgins of Beacon street, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Higgins of Andover and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barnard of Belmont.

Chatty Notes of Social Circles

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM P. AUGUSTINE of Chestnut Hill plan to leave Boston tomorrow or Friday, for their winter home on River road in Richmond, Va. They will stay over Christmas and perhaps longer.

* * *

MRS. LEWIS I. PROUTY, of 303 Walnut street, Brookline, is in New York City this week, staying at the St. Regis Hotel. Mr. and Mrs. F. Robbins Mitchell of "Sunny Fields" in Weston are visiting New York at the Barclay.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD PAGE of Bigelow road, West Newton are spending the week at the Hotel Madison in New York City.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE PEABODY GARDNER, JR., of Brookline were he week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Maurice Congdon, at the Congdon home on Cooke street, Providence, R. I. Mrs. Congdon, who is Mrs. Gardner's sister held several informal luncheons and dinners.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. NATHANIEL HUGH COTTON, of Boston arrived yesterday at the Westbury Hotel in New York where they have engaged an apartment for the winter season.

BIGGEST EVER SUNDAY SHOW TO AID FUND

Working for a public cause a large way over will be a matter of fun at the Ballet Ball to be given Evening American Christmas Basket Fund Inc. next Sunday night in the Colonial Theatre and there will be costumes instead of ceremonies.

The show will be that big. In fact it will be the biggest Sunday night show ever put on in Boston.

Charlie Wilkes will introduce the regular Colonial Sunday Show including Dick Rinaldo and his orchestra.

ACTS FROM ORPHEUM

Charlie Hegan will present acts from Loews' Orpheum. The Boston Evening American Sunday News comedy team of Bill Hall and Jack Norton will present their Nanny Tot of Mystery and the bronze Buddy act, singing and dancing pupil as well as Emmy and Dorothy Lee, dancing stars of Abey Baltzer's Big Time Revue. Dixie Dixon and Officer Ethel Greene are among others.

The Ruggy Weeks will introduce Vaude Jones and all the Rhythm Boys will appear in the Jazz Revue. Lew Will be master of ceremonies when acts from Keith Proctor's Boston and Grand Ma Shinnon will officiate in introducing acts from the Metropolitan Theater.

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald will be master of ceremonies during part of the program.

Abe Lyman and His Californian Winter dance band [illegible] Hi Ways.

DANCING AT MIDNIGHT

Dinner will be served at 8 p.m. at the Coconut Grove and the show will run from 11 o'clock to midnight, with dancing from midnight to 2 a.m.—and all for only $2.75 per person.

Meanwhile several theaters more will hold shows all this week and the rest of the Basket Fund.

Tonight there will be an Elks' benefit sponsored by the Press Writers' Club, at the New Somerville Ballroom in Washington street.

The other benefit tonight will be a dancing party in Robert Burns Hall, Caledonian Building, 53 Berkeley street, under direction of Arthur "Red" Harrison.

SHOW AT THEATER

Tomorrow night the Greater Boston Chapter No. 44, Disabled American Veterans of the World War, with its auxiliary, will hold its December bridge and whist party.

Plans for the midnight benefit show Friday night at the Metropolitan Theater in aid of the Lyric Fund and to provide coal for needy children of the city, have been completed by Manager Max Michaels.

George MacKinnon will be master of ceremonies at the show, for which vaudeville and legitimate stars stars and the floor shows from the Modern Casino, Rainbow and Cascades have contributed their services.

ALL FOR THE NEEDY

The show is sponsored by the Minsky Brothers, who are undertaking all expenses, that the full proceeds may go to the needy.

On Saturday night there will be a party in the Cameo Room of the Hotel Avery, in Avery street, under direction of Jimmy Saltz, the Cameo Room manager.

JUDGE CRATER WENT---WHERE?

$300,000 Search Failed to Solve Mystery

This is the fifth of a daily series on the mystery of the disappearance of missing persons.

By WIN BROOKS

Supreme Court Justice Crater [illegible] his chicken and piece de resistance [illegible] August 6, 1930, [illegible] his desk from the [illegible] room and [illegible] gave her [illegible] kiss.

The waiter was Billy Haas' [illegible] Crater [illegible] W 44th street New York. The time was 9:30 p.m. and the date was August 6, 1930.

Crater had dined with William [illegible] another lawyer. As they left Crater paused to speak with a man and woman at a corner table.

STEPPED INTO TAXI

Together Crater and Klein walked to 45th street where the judge signaled a taxi. He stepped into it, giving the driver, [illegible] destination, called back to Klein:

"Good night"

Klein replied, "See you here this week." Then the taxi door slammed shut, the cab moved off and Justice Joseph Force Crater went more than [illegible] hour to live.

Within a few months of attaining his life ambition—appointment to the Supreme Court bench for the new Tri-Boro district of the United States—Crater vanished utterly, leaving a trail that has led a $300,000 search nearly nowhere.

The judge was a graduate of Lafayette and Columbia Law [illegible] of the law at New York University, [illegible] former law partner of U. S. Senator Wagner, and a Tammany protege. He was a brilliant [illegible] his possessed a mind as sharp as [illegible] of the practice of the law. He was 41 years old.

He had a wife, Stella M. Crater, [illegible] children. He had a Fifth avenue apartment and a summer [illegible] Belgrade, Me., on Great [illegible] Me. Crater was in Maine.

Because it was midsummer with [illegible] and no big relatives [illegible] friends were able to keep his disappearance secret for nearly [illegible] weeks. Then police and the district attorney's office became active.

CLUES, ACCUSATIONS

There was certain evidence that Crater did [illegible] before he vanished. It was found that he had drawn $5000 from two bank accounts. He was to have been questioned in the investigation of [illegible] case against Martin J. Healy, city official indicted for receiving $10,000 in [illegible] duration of the appointment of Crater to the bench.

Plenty of wild rumors that nothing [illegible] Crater was participated [illegible] the Tammany Club in Healy's district.

This Is Life

by ROBERT E ROGERS

It did me good to read of a recent decision of the Supreme Court in which an amateur photographer, a man, to be precise, was awarded the sum of $1 as damages in a suit which he brought against a restaurants and hash houses in New York and vicinity, for the unauthorized use of his photographs in advertisements.

Robert E. Rogers

Eight years ago this man Hoffman brought suit against the famous eating machine company. Once a year, and sometimes oftener, he would bring a new photograph of himself into court and ask that the company be restrained from using it in its advertisements. Each time the court granted the request, and each time the company appealed the decision to the Supreme Court of the United States. Finally, after eight years of litigation, the Supreme Court handed down a decision which, in effect, declared that Hoffman's photographs were not to be used in advertisements without his consent, and that he was entitled to damages for the unauthorized use of his pictures in the past.

Failed to Collect

What a pleasant contrast this is to another decision not long ago when Adolphus Busch [illegible] Maxwell E. Belcher. I never remember which was which, no radio comic who tried to [illegible] ever succeeded in getting a penny to pay for the use of [illegible] undoubtedly [illegible] a comic.

I have a suggestion for [illegible] A colored [illegible] [illegible] four [illegible]

I have one to make because a one to [illegible] as all [illegible] I do.

Or words to that effect. If the author of the [illegible] should check the [illegible] [illegible]

Strange how [illegible] worth people will [illegible] [illegible] given right to [illegible] do contemptuous [illegible] right of a poet to the children of his brain.

I have seen teachers of drama in convention [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] pay royalty on a play where their hope will [illegible] money from the audience.

As the matter [illegible] one can not pass [illegible] what I speak. Plays are not produced though meant to be produced. Why should an author expect any money from their performance?

Perhaps the absolute example of brass and nerve in this business is the one now being attempted on the part of theater owners, radio magnates, and other such beneficiaries of the public's good will by the Society of Authors and Composers, on the ground that it constitutes a combination in restraint of trade, and in the hope that they will be able to perform and broadcast even copyrighted material without paying a penny to the artists, writers and composers, whose brainsweat produced the material and knowledge stuff we call literature or music.

The big fellows can usually protect themselves legally. It is the little fellow who always gets grafted on from the beginning. Authors and Composers was organized to afford him some measure of protection.

If there were no protection a broadcasting chain could buy one copy of a musical number, have it orchestrated by a hack musician, and perform it on an ordination, and nauseum, in [illegible] programs which bring in the chain thousands of dollars.

As Mr. Joseph Penner would remark under such circumstances "There AIN'T no justice."

Cut in on Profits

I wish I was more of the humble hards could prove their hardship to these hill-billy and railway ditties—they must have been composed by some one at some time—and cut in to the profits of the exploiters and entrepreneurs who take their stand on the technicalities of the copyright law and the power of their wealth.

By the way, who composed the tune "The Ship That Never Returned," to which Mr. George set his immortal lyric? Possible Mr. George ought to share his new royalties with somebody or other.

Asks $50,000

STORY OF "NUDE ART" BRINGS SMILES

It was a full house that greeted Madame Fofo Lauka and her former manager, Harry Spilios today when the municipal court hearing resumed on Madame Fofo's $50,000 suit against the Park Entertainment, Inc.

Madame Fofo wants the monetary balm for the damage she claims she suffered as the result of her photograph having been shown in the lobby of the Park theater last June.

The picture was surrounded by a lot of [illegible] nude [illegible] she charges and the episode did [illegible] of hers in Greek [illegible] [illegible].

So far the suit has been confined to [illegible] of how upset Madame Fofo [illegible] when she saw the picture and how as a result she was unable to give more than two of 10 performances she had contracted to give in Pittsburgh.

But first Spilios defined art and Greek art and explained how burlesque was not art. On this subject for the moment the court was [illegible] and [illegible] Madame Fofo, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] I expect.

But it was after the rest of the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Spilios testified. Further [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the gallery [illegible] when Spilios [illegible]

"Burlesque is not art. It is a place to demonstrate good-looking girls, not in the proper dress, but sometimes in the nude. I mean nudeness by the use of a figleaf—Eve's costume."

She Screamed!

Judge Charles L. Carr, who was even inclined to smile himself on occasion, thought this was an opportune time to set [illegible] and so he did. He warned spectators that it might be all right to smile, but added that

"A reasonable amount of dignity will be maintained in the court."

Spilios told a graphic tale of what happened to Madame Fofo when he and [illegible] strolled into the lobby of the theater and madame saw her photo with the "burly" queens.

The surroundings in the Park lobby that caused her [illegible] much unhappiness Spilios described.

"They are rather undressed. They had on a shimmy."

When he mentioned "undressed," the manager shuddered. When he got to the "shimmy" he trembled. Then with a graceful wave of his hand, indicated the matter was [illegible]. He resumed with [illegible]

"Nothing on from the hips down."

He was asked:

"Nude, you say, from the waist down?"

"Not from the waist, from here—"

Spilios corrected the impression with another graceful handwave or two.

Just before the trial closed he was asked:

"Do you know Fannie Brice?"

Spilios pondered a few [illegible] then wanted to know:

"Is she a Greek?" he asked.

SEES "FLYING TRAPEZE" THIEF TAKE HIGH DIVE

When Mrs. Blanche Rogers, above, of Chauncey street, Cambridge, caught a prowler looting this drawer in her dining room, he dove headlong through a window to make his escape. Just previously, he had made another getaway, from a nearby home, by grasping heavy window draperies and swinging outward on them, flying-trapeze fashion. CHAPTER 271

WITHOUT REALIZING [illegible], Katie had hit upon the one [illegible] needful to save [illegible] racked nerves. She had not consciously attempted any especial appeal to my readier [illegible] perpetually in the role known as "looking for an audience," but the sight of Jim's face, his mouth so filled with the wedding cake his brute [illegible] had crammed into it that he could not speak, did more to relax the tension of my nerves than anything else could have accomplished.

I did not dare to remain in the kitchen another second. To laugh at Jim's predicament would have been unthinkable. The honest, slow, but sensitive chap would have been too deeply humiliated for words. But I knew that I could not be responsible for my laughter muscles. So with a perfunctory "good night," I hurried out of the kitchen and down the hall. When my father caught up with me at the veranda door, I was leaning against the door post, helpless with laughter.

SAVED FROM HYSTERIA

Wisely my father realized that this laughter was not hysteria, and stood quietly smiling down at me until I had finished. Then he took my arm and guided me toward the porch hammock, where I had declared my intention of resting until Roderick and Junior returned, with the rest of the party, from the moonlight drive to the ocean which Edith Fairfax had proposed.

Katie ought to hang out her shingle as a psychiatrist," my father said with a chuckle. "I never have seen a more opportune remedy prescribed, nor one with so beneficial an effect. I really think I ought to send her a check."

"Don't!" I advised with an answering [illegible] gather Jim [illegible] abilities, as it is. If you're yearning to distribute largesse, give it to Jim."

"As a sop for his wounded feelings?" my father queried with another chuckle, patently at the memory of Jim's mouth crammed with cake. "I don't believe he needs it. I long ago was convinced that Jim needs no aid in handling his temperamental wife, when she gets on obstreperous. He is like a [illegible] natured mastiff that lets weaker dogs tease him outrageously until his patience gives out. Then Jim, like the mastiff, I fancy, can act most effectively."

WHEN JIM WAS VICTOR

"I quite agree with you." I told him, with amused remembrance of several passages in the lives of our faithful helpers when Jim was distinctly triumphant and Katie subdued for several days afterward. "Oh! Isn't it heavenly out here?"

"That is the right word," my father said, pausing, with his arm around me, to look out over the vista of lawn, meadows and woodland dipping toward the distant ocean, which is so dear to both of us, and which, flooded with moonlight, was almost unearthly in its radiance.

"But it's also too chilly for you," he said a few seconds later. "Come, let me tuck you up on the couch. But—shouldn't you change your gown first?"

I looked down at my evening gown with an apologetic laugh. So swept with fear and hysteria had I been that I had forgotten I was still attired in the new gown I had purchased for Mary's wedding.

"Of course," I answered promptly. "How absurd I am! I'll run up and change to something warm immediately."

PREPARED FOR EDITH

"I'll go with you," he said, suddenly with the thought of my former tremors vividly in his mind.

"No more tremors tonight," I said. "Between your drastic discipline," I smiled sidewise at him, "and Katie's comedy, I am rapidly convalescing, if not entirely cured. Please stay down here. I shall be less than five minutes."

I was as good as my word, although I was vain enough to select the pair of lounging pajamas which Dicky had so much admired. A pair of sheer stockings was my sop to convention, but I clung to the satin "mules" which matched the pajamas. My coiffure was still in good condition, I noticed with satisfaction and, when I had freshened my face a bit, I threw around me a light-weight lounging robe which Lillian had given me for my birthday, and which was as warm as it was attractive.

YOU'RE BEAUTIFUL TONIGHT

As I left the room I gave a last glance at my reflection, and felt a little glow of gratified vanity. I was not so silly as to think I "held a candle" to the fresh, flower-petal loveliness of the young girls of our party—even to Arden's artificially constructed beauty—but, I told myself, I did not need to fear comparison with Edith Fairfax. And that consolation was balm to my hungry soul. I could not have borne presenting a frowsy picture to my husband, and—yes, I acknowledged it honestly—to Hugh and Jim Fairfax, when they should return from their drive. As it was—

My father's voice brought me back from my vanity-laden speculation, but his words did nothing to curb it.

"Please stand still a moment," he said from the foot of the stairs, "and let me look at you. How beautiful you are tonight, my darling! You are startling in your resemblance to your mother. I have watched her come downstairs in the same regal fashion."

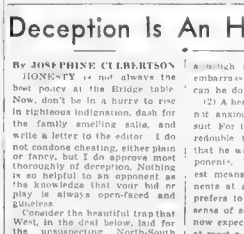
Deception Is An Honest Ruse in Contract

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

HONESTY is not always the best policy at the Bridge table. Now, don't be in a hurry to rise in righteous indignation, dash for the family smelling salts, and write a letter to the editor. I do not condone cheating, either plain or fancy, but I do approve most thoroughly of deception. Nothing is so helpful to an opponent as the knowledge that your bid or play is always open-faced and guileless.

Consider the beautiful trap that West, in the deal below, laid for the unsuspecting North-South pair.

East, Dealer
North and South vulnerable



The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♣	Double (1)	2 ♣ (2)	2 ♠ (3)
Pass	3 ♡ (4)	Double (5)	Pass
Pass	Pass

(1) South is too strong for a simple overcall, and so doubles although a spade response will embarrass him. Still what else can he do?

(2) A heaven-sent trap bid. West is not anxious to double one of a suit. For that reason he does not redouble to indicate to partner that he wishes to punish the opponent. That would be the surest means of keeping the opponents at a low bid. West much prefers to lull them into a false sense of security. Each opponent now expects that his partner has at most a singleton club and consequently good support for every other suit; also, the two-club bid, indicating as it does a weak hand and some sort of miserable hope of shutting out North, masks West's true strength.

(3) North bites.

(4) South is almost sorry that he started this whole business but he still is not as sorry as he will be later on.

(5) The axe finally falls.

The play was more or less cut and dried. A club was opened continued and ruffed. Now the spade was led through and then East got in with his Ace and returned a trump to help West out of any exit trouble he might later have. This protection was needless, as it turned out, since West had to make two of his remaining three trumps. When South crawled out of the cyclone cellar, the opponents were chalking up a 1400 point set.

Felicitations to Bride

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly tell me if a proper [illegible] to say "to a bride"?

ANXIOUS READER

It is considered correct to say "congratulate" the bride. However, it is customary to offer congratulations to the groom. That is, when congratulating the groom on having won a charming wife. In offering congratulations to the bride we use the expression "Best wishes" or "Every good wish for your happiness." We say "May I tell you of my best wishes for your happiness?" If you keep these two appropriate expressions [illegible] for the groom, and best wishes for the bride and add to them any other friendly comment, you will always be assured that your felicitations will be in the best form.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are to have our baby baptized soon at a Protestant Episcopal church. Is it customary to give the minister a fee? M.

Yes.

Governor Murray, Oklahoma, released a life term bank bandit and slayer for six days, without a guard, so the prisoner could go quail hunting.

The news dispatches didn't say whether or not the hunter used a machine gun.

It must have been a struggle for the guy to refrain from looking to see if any of the quail had wandered into a bank.

He could have said he was merely trying to flush a quail out of a cashier's tongue.

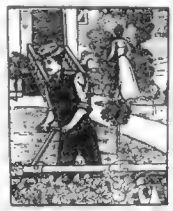
GIVE YOURSELF THIS "PHOTO-TYPE" TEST



Note—Government civil service employes are protesting because they have to pass a "camera eye" test. They are permitted to study a simple picture, like above, for five minutes and then submit to questioning. You can test yourself. Direct your attention on the above picture for five minutes. Are you riveting? Now, close your eyes, open your mouth and answer back in reply to the following questions—

1. Was the man with the lawn mower wearing earmuffs and long underwear?

2. Why is the lady using a vacuum cleaner outside when she has a sink full of breakfast dishes inside?

3. When a fella sends his girl a mustache cup packed in a Tiffany box why do they call him a Christmas card.

I'd shout a most emphatic "yes" To those who would annihilate The guy who tries to sooth distress By ad lib homilies on fate.

Fuller, Like Old Wine, Grows Better With Age; Benevolent Jack Curley

Mrs. Moody Will Play Tennis Only for 'Fun'; Terry Is Penitent Again

By AUSTEN LAKE

SABINO FERRULLO CALLED SAMMY FULLER is a lumpy little [illegible] who has reached the twilight age of 28, an elder in a profession where a man becomes a querulous dodo from [illegible] hammering, with his natural filament burned out and with slack, shoe-rag muscles.

Austen Lake

But Sabino-called Sammy has reached [illegible] old age, without the aid of a cane in a trade where the accident rate is high and where pounding about the eyes, skull, kidneys and heart are not recommended as aids to health.

This has required no little heroism on Sammy's part, because he has had to deny himself the oils and starches that are the recurrent weakness of every Italian boy, and by his will power forces himself to live on hay, air and imagination. So that now, in the midst of his fourth personal revival, he is seeing his name in lights again.

Sammy is a simple-hearted lad, with a bullfrog spread to his features, a satyr's grin, a smear of cobblestone philosophy.

Two years ago, before the McLarnin fight, he was strolling down Eighth avenue in New York. Ahead loomed the rococo turrets and gingerbread facade of the Madison Square Garden. Bright electric bulbs spelled his name over the door.

He stopped, his Sammy with his soul in his eyes, or as he said: "Wit' me heart in me mout'." In a nearby store window was a colored photograph the size of himself, tiptoe in his ring togs.

"An' I was inside to meself," said he, "Sammy, don't be a sucker. It, a coupla days they'll take them lights down and throw that pitcher away. Then Sammy'll be just another mug in the mob.

GREAT HEARTED, FATHERLY Jacques Curley the New York promoter was consoling Jim Browning, the heavyweight wrestler, just before eye infection sent Jim to a shaded hospital room.

"Jim," growled Jacques, "you are more of a son than a wrestler to me. I got your interest at heart. And you gotta wife and some kids. This here now eye trouble may put out your lights. So I ain't gonna let you wrestle for me anymore . . . not more than twice a week."

FROM BERKELEY, on the Pacific Coast, where Mrs. Helen Wills Moody is puttering with her schoolgirl drawings and mending the crick on her back, comes word that she will henceforth play tennis "only for fun, merely for healthful enjoyment and recreation." She will not compete in major tournaments.

This is a revelation, implying in plain, blunt Saxon language, that tournament tennis, with its payload of customers and galloping disintegration on the courts, is not fun as backyard addicts know it. This is because the vocational amateurs of tennis, like the pros of other sports, must obey the heroic rule that "the play must go on at any cost."

Of course, the patrons and tennis authors who sit on the steep slopes around the grass courts would not have them play to their very deaths, but still they are expected to plug along even when wind and limb are gone and take their trimmings long after competition has ceased to be a pleasure.

An amateur, theoretically, is supposed to play, whatever the sport, for the refreshment and fun of the contest, and when he or she decides that fun has fled he or she ought to chuck it all.

Now, in playing tennis on her own backyard court against the neighbors' children, Mrs. Moody can surrender at will, without suffering a public heartache.

IT IS CHEERING TO HEAR that Bill Terry, manager of the New York Giants, has deserted his churlish ways and given a luncheon in honor of the press. This follows on the fact that, of all the assembled baseball celebrities who gathered in New York recently, Terry was the jolliest yarn spinner and lobby gossiper of the lot.

This is the second dinner that Terry has given to the press in recent years, the last being on the occasion of the 1933 World Series, when he coated himself with honey and said as how he wanted to be chums. But soon he went back to his sullen, solitary ways and gave interviews, if at all, in gruff monosyllables.

In promising to mend his ways this time, the writers are slow to buy him back, lest when spring comes he relapse suddenly and return to his hermit life and bearish moods in a hotel room.

Yet, if his reforms become permanent, I am not sure that Terry, jovial and blithe, will be as useful copy as Terry, surly and sour.

MOST HEINOUS, UNFORGIVABLE CRIME in wrestling is the double cross, when one lodge brother violates his sacred trust and flops an opponent against all pre-match covenants. Wayne Munn and Strangler Lewis broke their pre-match bonds at various time and had anathema's rosette pinned on their floppy breasts for long periods, when neither wrestling man nor beast called them fellow, and they wandered like pariahs in the wrestling wastelands until they pleaded forgiveness and the lodge took them back.

So now, in Los Angeles, where old and whiskery Man Mountain Dean was working toward a return bout with Jimmy Londos and another 40,000 house, he was flopped over the ropes by a mere nobody, a common nonentity, Chief Little Wolf.

Old and creaky Man Mountain had thrown Georges Zaharias, Joe Savoldi, Hans Steinke and Howard Cantowine in his campaign back to Londos. And this night he was billed to tangle with Pat O'Shocker.

Only at the last minute O'Shocker came up with gas pains, stomach cramps and adenoids, and an unheard-of sub was hurried to the scene. The sub was recommended as a goofy palooka, who didn't know a Nelson from an Olson, Anderson or Swesen.

But in the first flurry he picked up the big lump of meat, bone and hair known as Dean and floated him onto the ringside concrete, from where attendants swept up the oyster-like remains and hustled them off to the in-patients' department. On awakening they say Dean's outcry was terrific.

Coast Terror Bulks Large in Fund Cauliflower Patch

Here's looking up at you, Bobby Pacho, the Mexican puncheosser, who is the Pacific Coast champion, seems to say as he poses for the first picture taken of him in Boston. Pacho is a two-fisted, hard-punching lightweight who meets Sammy Fuller on the all-star boxing card for the benefit of the Basket Fund of the Boston American at the Garden on Friday night. Ray Valenti, promoter of the show, has offered Barney Ross $2,000 to meet Fuller, but Pacho says: "I'll be the one to spoil these plans after I meet Sambo." 'Arenc Mat Battle O'Mahoney Refuses Bid Rip Valenti's Calmness

By Jack Conway

I'LL BE in the press row at the Arena tonight when Count Zarynoff makes his bid to lift Bob "Bibber" McCoy's title as New England heavyweight wrestling champion. The Count has the necessary speed and ability to make McCoy show his best form to win.

Dan O'Mahoney, green Irish as he turned down Paul Lessor's offer of $100 000 grunt-and-groan matches in America. The real reason why the youthful Irishman refused the Bowser bid was because he didn't wish to sign any contract which would prevent him from returning to Ireland in January to wrestle for the Irish Free State Hospital Fund.

Mr Boston

Bowser has not given up hope of getting O'Mahoney for a return engagement, and pairing him with other conference wrestlers today.

Looks Like a Sellout

MAX KASE called Rip Valenti on the telephone

"How does your show look, Rip?" queried Max

"Good," replied the Goodwin A. C. matchmaker

"What will it draw?" pressed Kase.

"It will be a sellout," answered Valenti without the least display of emotion or excitement.

Rip then called Sam Pian on the long distance telephone at Chicago and offered him a $25,000 guarantee to let Barney Ross defend his title against Sammy Fuller in Boston. He made his sensational offer with the same nonchalance you display when you sit down in front of your favorite waiting and ask for a cup of coffee with a little extra cream.

Underneath his calm exterior Valenti, like other matchmakers . . . a bundle of nerves. He is completely relax until the gong has sounded which sends the main bout fighters into action.

Valenti got his schooling in the boxing game from the late Tom Goodwin. He called his club the Goodwin A. C. in memory of his friend. Goodwin, like Valenti, hid his emotions. Unless you knew him well, you never could figure out what he was thinking about Goodwin, if alive would be thrilled by Friday night's show. It is the kind promoter on he . . . Great fights, and par . . . fans as referees.

Goodwin would have thrilled to Jind Dempsey, Sharkey, Fuller, Pancho Villa, Dervish, Arrelli, Baer, Schmeling, Henry Saretic, Al Mello . . . and "Buck Tracy on the same card.

And so is Valenti . . . he is outwardly . . . is going his way to a big . . . gate.

My guess is that the Christmas Fund show will draw between $24,000 and $30,000. A sellout would mean a gate of $32,000.

Round the Curve, Winging for Home Down Where the Palm Trees Grow

Enthusiasm, with Jockey Litzenberger up, is leading the field around the last curve in this race at Tropical Park. It was one of the best races on the program. Canterbury, with Lynch astride, is fourth in this picture, but put on a terrific burst of speed in the run down the stretch and finished second. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

Dizzy Rules Sport Roost for 1934

Baer Third in Poll

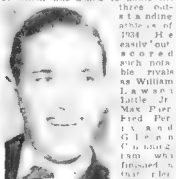
DEAN TAKES PLACE OF RUTH AS COLORFUL PERSONALITY

By Associated Press

New York, Dec. 19—Picking up where his great southpaw rival, Carl Owen Hubbell, left off a year ago, the celebrated Jerome Herman (Dizzy) Dean rules the sporting roost of 1934 as the outstanding performer, in any sport, by virtually a landslide vote of acclaim in the fourth annual Associated Press sports poll.

Nearly 75 per cent of the ballots, received from sports writers and editors throughout the county, named the right-handed pitching ace of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals as the No. 1 athlete of the year, amateur or professional.

He was put at the head of the list by 76 out of 112 observers, each of whom was asked to name the three outstanding athletes of 1934. It easily out-scored such notable rivals as William Lawson Little Jr., Max Baer, Fred Perry and Gene Sarazen, who finished second, third and fourth, respectively, in the voting.



Dizzy Dean

Dean received 1,031 points in the complete tabulation, more than double the total for Little, 513. Hubbell, the 1933 winner, failed to receive a single vote.

Won 30 Last Year

Winner of 30 games during the regular National League season and victor in two out of three World Series starts, Dean's accomplishments, as well as his colorful personality, appealed more strongly to the sporting fraternity than the exploits of any baseball star since Babe Ruth was at the peak.

Clinching the runner-up role on the strength of his remarkable achievement in capturing both British and American amateur golf championships this year, Lawson Little was rated the outstanding amateur of 1934 in competition with a strong group of rivals.

Results of the poll follow:

Jerome H. (Dizzy) Dean, baseball, 268.
W. Lawson Little, Jr., golf, 113.
Max Baer, boxing, 52.
Frederick J. Perry, tennis, 47.
Dean brothers (Dizzy and Paul), baseball, 35.
Glenn Cunningham, track, 27.
Jack Medica, swimming, 15.
Beattie Feathers, pro football, 14.
Mickey Cochrane, baseball, 12.
Barney Ross, boxing, 10.

FIGHT SCRIBES GET 'INVITE' FROM HITLER

SCHMELING - HAMAS FIGHT TO BRING FREE TRIPS

(C) 1934 by Universal Service

New York, Dec. 19—Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany may finance the trip of ten or twelve American journalists to the Schmeling-Hamas fight at Hamburg, March 19, as a hands-across-the-sea gesture to America, Joe Jacobs, manager of Schmeling, announced today.

As Jacobs explains it, the Brown Dictator of Europe are making their headquarters runs through the winter with 50 per cent capacity in the first-class cabins. The American journalists, he said, could fill those cabins very nicely with little expense to the Germans and a great deal of benefit.

"Why should the United States boycott Germany on the fight . . . when we have an opportunity for good will and its condition," Jacobs said. "I will, however, say that it was fortunate for Senator Long that it was Captain Jones, who was coaching at L. S. U. when Long went butting into the dressing room between the halves of the Oregon game, and not Biff's successor at West Point, Major Ralph Sasse.

The stories which Baton Rouge indicate that Biff not only pointed out the dressing room door to Huey Long, but led him to it. Biff is a mild, restrained and forbearing man. Major Sasse the . . . ron . . . of . . . thanks a lot.

In a similar circumstances the Major not once would have led Senator Long to the door, he would have made exceedingly sure that he got through it. Also any of the Second Corps Area bodyguards that he chanced to have with him.

The probabilities are that L. S. U. will just have to take it on the chin. And when the team starts taking it on the chin, Huey will take it on the lam from the football scene, so maybe all things turn out for the best in the end. Let's hope so.

Gymnasts Win

Ithaca, N. Y., Dec. 19—Springfield College's sharp-shooting basketball team defeated Cornell, 41 to 28, before 1500 here. A 15-point rally by the visitors broke a 10-10 deadlock in the last ten minutes of the first half.

Hawks' Pilot Loses Debate With Stewart

By Universal Service

Montreal, Dec. 19—In a thrilling National Hockey League game Clarence Black Hawks retained their undisputed leadership in the American division by holding the Montreal Canadiens to a 1 to 1 overtime tie in the Forum.

The game, a rough and tumble affair, saw Clem Loughlin, manager of the Black Hawks, ruled off the ice and off the Black Hawk bench after a heated verbal joust with Referee Bill Stewart.

It all started halfway through the third period when Sylvio Mantha attempted to poke-check Art Coulter.

The latter slipped and brought Mantha down in his fall. Stewart slapped a penalty on Coulter and then Coughlin jumped into the breach.

After several minutes of argument, Stewart ordered Coughlin out and the game was resumed.

There were 11 penalties, with Coulter receiving four of them.

JONES LOSES JOB BUT BEATS HUEY IN DEBATE

By Bill Corum

New York, Dec. 19—Senator Huey P. Long has succeeded in ridding Louisiana State University of Captain Lawrence (Biff) Jones as head football coach and apparently he is in order Corporation Counsel Captain Jones.

Senator Long is now quoted as saying that there is going to be a big improvement in certain departments of L. S. U. Long's thinking (as usual) and that he wants a coach and will lose no games and no votes.

That's fine. So does Notre Dame. So did Princeton. So does Princeton. So did Yale. The next question is where to find such a coach, and especially where to find him for $7,500 a year. But that's the second problem.

Knowing nothing on earth about football except that he has made it a good springboard for thousands and thousands of words of personal balderdash this fall, the senator probably hasn't even a vague glimmering that he has let the best coach that L. S. U. ever had, or probably ever will have, get away.

SENATOR NOT DUMB

But that realization will come in due time. And the time is looking after the first two or three games of next season's schedule. Whatever else the senator is, he can't be dumb, and what a surprise he is going to get when he discovers that four Biff Jones's there are roaming the football fields!

This column has no quarrel with Senator Long and isn't looking for one. But as the case stands now, he is greatly misunderstood man.

I will, however, say that it was fortunate for Senator Long that it was Captain Jones, who was coaching at L. S. U. when Long went butting into the dressing room between the halves of the Oregon game, and not Biff's successor at West Point, Major Ralph Sasse.

The stories which Baton Rouge indicate that Biff not only pointed out the dressing room door to Huey Long, but led him to it. Biff is a mild, restrained and forbearing man. Major Sasse the . . . ron . . . of . . . thanks a lot.

In a similar circumstances the Major not once would have led Senator Long to the door, he would have made exceedingly sure that he got through it. Also any of the Second Corps Area bodyguards that he chanced to have with him.

The probabilities are that L. S. U. will just have to take it on the chin. And when the team starts taking it on the chin, Huey will take it on the lam from the football scene, so maybe all things turn out for the best in the end. Let's hope so.

Return of Nels Stewart Break for Bruins

Play of Eagles Ice Surprise

By Bill Grimes

Of course, we appreciate the Bruins' fine victory over the Rangers at the Garden, but still we feel that the big hockey news developed last night was the St. Louis 2 to 1 overtime conquest of the Amerks . . . Since George "Buck" Boucher replaced Eddie Gerard as manager, the Eagles have tied Les Canadiens and beaten Americans . . . 'Twas a good thing for the Bruins that the suspension on Captain Nels Stewart was lifted yesterday or the chances are that they'd have taken it on the chin for the third straight game.

Big Nels was hardly on the ice when he scored the first goal and just 20 seconds later he came back with another . . . Fast work, we'll say . . . I haven't yet met anyone who ever saw Nels Stewart start a stick jam . . . and, between us, if Dede Klein had not been swinging his shillalah madly, he wouldn't have been nicked with Stewart's stick . . . Instead, he would have been socked right on the button, with a rights cross.

Since he has "gone" hockey, Eddie Hurley has lost his taste for meat . . . He now insists upon fish at least twice per day . . . Davie Kerr, the new Rangers' goalie, was pitted in the first period, when big Ching Johnson was obliged to retire for repairs . . . The American and Central Leagues have a system whereby the teams play interleague games and at the end of the season the winners will play off . . . Unless somebody errs and one team tops both leagues . . . Then they will demand a recount . . . Or they might tell the fans to skip it.

KENNEDY'S 2 GOALS TURNS TABLES

Brown edged Boston University's courtmen, 33 to 30 at the B. U. gym. Two field goals by Fred Kennedy in the closing 30 seconds of play accounted for the invaders victory.

Four successive goals at the start of the tilt had put B. U. out in front, 12 to 3 where they stayed until the third stanza. Aided by Kennedy, Brown center who scored 17 points in all, the visitors stepped out to win.

SHARES HEAVY AT CLOSE OF DEALINGS

New York, Dec. 19.—Steady pressure of the utilities which sent Consolidated Gas to a record low unsettled the rest of the stock market today. Losses in the list ran from 1 to 3 points and the main body of stock showed little rallying power.

The fresh outbreak of liquidation in the power and light shares which hit Public Service, American Water Works, North American and Columbian Gas was precipitated by the fight between the administration and the utility leaders. The rejection of street lighting bids by New York City was a feature in depressing Consolidated Gas.

RAILS WEAR

Railroad shares which had been hesitant and soft during the forenoon turned definitely weak in the final hour when Allegheny Corporation offerings and lost more than 2 points. New York Central, Lackawanna, Delaware & Hudson suffered smaller losses. New Haven lost fractionally to sell at a new low for the year.

United States Smelting developed another sinking spell losing more than 2 points to unsettle the other silver shares including Howe Sound, American Smelting and Cerro De Pasco. Gold mining shares, however, were firm.

Industrials including United States Steel were heavy along with other stocks and failed to be stimulated by the optimism in the trade reviews.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS

New Developments in the utility situation were something of a blow to some quarters in Wall Street, who had looked for a "truce" to develop from President Roosevelt's conferences with several leaders in the industry recently.

The determination of some of the utility leaders to continue their fight on the constitutionality of the PUH secrets to have settled such hopes glimmering. In the meantime, the rate controversy has broken out afresh in New York City, with the efforts of the companies to pass on the special city tax to consumers.

Some traders seemed disposed to take profits in merchandising shares, as the holiday trade season draws toward its close. A survey of its membership of department stores by the National Retail Dry Goods Association placed Christmas sales this year at 10 per cent above 1933, and the best since 1931. Some selling has been placed the volume at the highest since 1930, including all types of stores.

Some of the railroad freight loadings reports for the week ended Saturday show further gains over 1933. New York Central reported 95,363 cars, against 90,331 in the same week of last year. On the whole, steel business statistics showed a continuation of the recent upward trend.

Shawmut Bank Inv. Trust Earnings

In the three months ended Nov. 30, 1934, Shawmut Bank Investment Trust, on the basis of comparison of six months' and nine months' income statements, had a deficit after senior debenture interest payment of $1032.

After allowing for junior note interest (which was not paid) and after loss from sale of securities, there was a loss for the quarter of $10,500. Profit and loss deficit increased from $131,310 to $137,500, after various adjustments.

As of Nov. 30 investments had an excess of cost over market of $1,074,673, compared with a similar excess of $1,227,701 on Aug. 31.

"WIFE IN CUSTODY"

By Beatrice Lubitz

CHAPTER XXIX

Walter made the run from the farm in South Bound Brook to New York in an hour and twenty minutes—in record time. He stopped at a booth to phone his mother, but he couldn't get the number. Nor did any of the others' phones answer. Not wishing to waste more time, he decided he'd drive up to his mother's house. He called his own number just to tell Helen he'd reached New York safely. He got Marie.

"Mrs. Riley went to the hospital about 20 minutes ago," she reported excitedly. "She's got the pains."

He wasted ten precious minutes while Information got him the Bound Brook Hospital.

"How long will it take, Doctor? I'm in New York but I can start back in a few minutes."

"I can't say but I don't believe she'll deliver before tomorrow morning, I imagine. She's got a long way to go yet."

"Is she in pain?" Walter cried, his voice breaking.

"No more than is to be expected," the doctor said cautiously.

Walter could have choked him. "Listen," he croaked, "tell her I called. I'll be there within two hours."

"Very well. I'll tell her."

Walter drove uptown like a maniac.

In the apartment was chaos. They were all in the living room talking loudly.

"Where is she?" he gasped hoarsely as he rushed in.

"In my bed, the damn fool," Anastasia said, "screaming herself hoarse."

Irene cried: "Thank the Lord you came. I'm at my wits' end. She gave us an awful scare. Luckily she got only a whiff of the gas before we smelt it out here."

AT HER BEDSIDE

Walter was at her bedside.

"She hasn't stopped screeching yet," Anastasia said. "She's had two shots in the arm just now from the doctor. He just left."

They all stood about as Walter stepped over to her. He grasped her shoulder between his strong fingers and shook her.

"What the devil's the matter with you?" he demanded roughly.

"Oh, Walter," she sobbed. "I loved him so. I did so much for him and then he runs off with another woman. A common ordinary rat! Oh, Walter, I want to die. I want to die!"

He was ashamed of his roughness.

"It's a damn shame, Stell, but making yourself sick won't help. You gave me the scare of my life. What's the idea of messing around with gas?"

"I want to die," she moaned. "I can't face it alone. I want to die."

Her voice became fainter. Her eyelids drooped. She was beginning to feel the effects of the morphine. "I want to die," she babbled. Her mouth hung open, her breath came in little bubbles. Presently she stopped moaning and she sank into a heavy breathing sleep that was more like a snore.

"She'll be all right when she wakes up," Ethel said, her eyes wet with tears.

"She gave us a frightful scare," Irene said as they returned to the living room. "I was horribly upset." She took her vanity out of her bag and powdered her nose. "She'll be all right when she gets up. She was awfully hysterical."

"I still maintain that gas pipe business was for effect," Agnes insisted.

"How can you be so heartless, Agnes!"

Dirk said: "The poor kid certainly had enough provocation. It isn't the easiest situation to face alone; a baby, and your husband off with another woman."

Walter turned savagely to Agnes. "What did you call me up for? I thought she was dying. I left Helen and she's in the hospital. I'll be stoked. "I'm going back. Goodbye."

"Walter, Walter, have a glass of brandy. You're ghastly. Helen's all right. Those things take hours and hours. You'll be back before she delivers. Why shouldn't I have called you? Do we have to bear all the trouble? You're as much to her as we are." Agnes argued impatiently. "Besides, you're the only one she listens to."

Walter's face twitched. "I agonize for hours and hours and me here!" Suddenly his voice broke.

IRENE FLUSHES

"You might have spared me coming here," he cried. "You're a bunch of hysterical females. I thought she had killed herself and I left Helen suffering."

"You seem rather sorry that she didn't," Irene snapped.

"Ah," he made an impatient gesture and slammed out of the apartment.

The nerve of him," gasper Irene. "Comes in, bawls out poor Stella and Agnes and then rushes off."

"You don't seem to realize that he left his ill wife to come here," Ethel said bitterly.

Irene flushed. "I didn't call for him. And I don't mind me. But after all, if she had succeeded in her suicide, he'd have had to come."

"Ah," Agnes said, "unnecessary stupid acts that have ever been inflicted on anyone, I think the most despicable one was calling him here at this time of night with Helen in childbirth."

Agnes went deadly pale. She didn't dare answer him back because he was the one man she respected.

"He didn't have to come." Irene countered. The others were silent, too shocked to speak.

"No, the more fool he. But Agnes managed to tell it to him in such a way that she knew would bring him here."

"You're unkind, Dirk," Irene said.

DIRK ANGERED

"I swear I called him in a moment of panic," Agnes babbled. "I hardly forgot all about Helen, poor kid. I know that my existence he has over Stella and I thought he could probably help her keep the one elder could."

Dirk's lips were pressed into a fine line.

"If you could think about others as sympathetically as you do about yourselves, you'd all be a damn sight better off. I'm with Helen until his turned on his heel and left the room.

Irene hesitated, then shrugged. "Well, you brought it on yourself, Agnes. I always said you were a bit selfish. I'm tired. I'm not match for situations like this—not for the lovely little mother of a lovely little baby girl to see."

Walter went blindly out of the room, his last glimpse of Helen was of her sobbing weakly.

In the next installment read how Walter finds Stella's presence weighing upon him heavily.

Ministers Want Rum Store Moved

Two clergymen from the Ruggles Street Baptist Church in Roxbury appeared before the licensing board today with a plea that a restaurant owner and a package goods store proprietor be forced to move from Tremont to Ruggles street.

The Rev. James T. Ryder, pastor, and the Rev. Phillip C. Hughes claimed that the restaurants and store exerted a bad influence on the young members of their flock. Thodore H. White, owner of the restaurant, and William D. Murphy, who conducts the package store, protested that they had taken every precaution against bad influence. The board took the plea under advisement.

COUNCIL HEARS PARDON PLEAS

Several new appointments, considerations of more than 28 pending confirmations, and the granting of Christmas pardons from a list of about 50 petitions, will face the Governors Council at its regular session today upon Beacon Hill.

Promotion of Superior Court Judge Stanley Qua to the Supreme Court bench, will be approved at today's session by the council, and a successor to Judge Qua on the Superior Court will be named by the governor.

George F. Leary of Springfield is expected to receive the appointment. Another mentioned is Lot M. Harlow of Boston.

Among other appointments to be confirmed, it is understood, are those of Chairman Henry C. Attwill of the public safety commission and Chairman Frank E. Lyman of the public works department, both Republicans.

Withdrawal of the name of J. Paul Keefe for the Boston Licensing board is expected because of opposition within the council. Keefe was Governor Ely's campaign manager, served in the same capacity during the Cole campaign, and afterwards supported the candidacy of Gaspar G. Bacon for governor.

Lawyer Offers 'Guilt' Reward

By Associated Press

Denver, Dec. 19—A $50,000 reward to anyone who could prove he passed any of the $200,000 Urschel ransom money was offered today by Ben F. Laska, Denver criminal attorney, indicted on a conspiracy charge in the kidnaping case.

Accused of having received some of the money paid for the release of Charles F. Urschel, the defender of Albert L. Bates, one of the gang's confederates, made the offer after federal agents had searched his home and offices.

Laska, released yesterday on $18,000 bond pending his hearing before a United States commissioner January 2, declared he would fight removal to Oklahoma City, where he was indicted Monday, James D. Mathers, another defense attorney indicted in the Urschel case, was released under $10,000 bond at Oklahoma City.

BUDD SKELETON IS REBUILT

By International News Service

New York, Dec. 19—A full and complete skeleton of little Grace Budd will be on exhibition for the benefit of the jury when Albert H. Fish, confessed slayer of the child, goes on trial in Westchester county for murder, it was indicated today.

From the Columbia Medical School came the announcement that the crumbling bones taken from the yard behind the abandoned house in Greenburgh, N. Y., where Fish admitted committing the crime, had been pieced together and provide a legal corpus delicti.

Tomorrow the state's witnesses will appear before the grand jury in Westchester and by the early part of next week, Albert Fish, white-haired, 65-year-old former house painter, will have been formally charged with the crime which may send him to the electric chair.

Budd Slayer Quizzed in Zuckerman Death

A dramatic scene, being enacted a New York police headquarters today, gave rise to Boston police hopes that the year-old slaying of 16-year-old Ethel Zuckerman in the South End might be solved.

POLICE BOOSTS DUE TOMORROW

Commissioner Hultman's annual Christmas promotions list, with the sergeants and six lieutenants to Boston's police force, it was indicated today when he asked the civil service commission for a list of eligible men to fill these vacancies.

Heading the list, which is expected tomorrow from Commissioner James Hultman, will be the 19 men who are now acting sergeants and the half dozen who are acting lieutenants. These are:

Acting Lieutenants—John Foley, Charles F. Eldridge, Edward J. Kelly, Robert A. Lynch, Edward B. Cain and John E. Curran.

Acting Sergeants: — John J. O'Keefe, Joseph P. Sullivan, Francis M. Burke, John J. Higgins, Nicholas E. Kenney, Michael Byrne, Thomas J. Sullivan, George F. Smith, Joseph J. Callahan, Cornelius F. O'Brien, James J. Mc-Weeney, Frank H. Sliney, Northover T. O'Connor, Jr., Jeremiah J. Sullivan, William H. Foley, John S. Willings, Patrick J. O'Donnell, William J. Owen and Thomas Conboy.

The promotions come after an all-day conference of the commissioner with the four deputy superintendents of the department, William W. Livingston, John M. Anderson, James R. Gilfillan and John McDevitt, as well as a conference this morning with Mayor Mansfield.

Hutton Must Give Up Badge

Los Angeles, Dec. 19—David Hutton, musical ex-husband of Aimee Semple McPherson, the evangelist, was held $40 diamond in bail but put in his nice police badge, but he must surrender the badge, or else—City Prosecutor Newton Kendall here notified Hutton that the badge, given him as a mark of esteem by the former police board, can be turned in or he will face arrest.

"He can keep the diamond, but the badge he must come back," declared Deputy City Attorney Sidney Williams, before whom Hutton was cited to appear December 26.

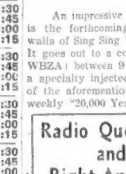
SING SING PRISONERS GIVE RADIO CONCERT TONIGHT

By THE EARCUPPER

An impressive entry on the ether schedules for this evening is the forthcoming period which originates behind high gray walls of Sing Sing Prison on the Hudson river, in New York state. It goes out to a coast to coast network of NBC stations (WEEI-WBZA) between 9 and 9:30 p. m. As might be imagined, it is a specialty injected by Warden Lewis E. Lawes, directing head of the aforementioned "Big House," and as a feature during his weekly "20,000 Years in Sing Sing half hour.

Radio Questions and Right Answers



Mildred Bailey

Is the singing known as the "Rockin' Chair Lady" a native of New Hampshire, starting as a choir singer in Nashua some eight or nine years ago?—L. cominster Listener.

No, the Mildred Bailey of radio was born in Spokane, Washington. In fact, Mildred is actually out Southern extraction. On her mother's side, the lovely dese ends from that of Gen. Robert E. Lee, the Confederate Civil War leader.

How come that Bill Munday, the Georgia cracking football announcer who won so much attention two or three years ago, hasn't been describing games this year, or even last year?—Yankee from Dixie.

Strange you should forward that "how come" query. Listen for the Rose Bowl grid battle between Leland-Stanford and Alabama, out in California on New Year's Day. Inside information is to the effect that Bill will do the broadcasting.

When they flash those sparking signals on various broadcasts, why don't they have them done in the real dot-and-dash fashion, or don't they want to have the impression realistic? Telegrapher, of Quincy.

As an operator, you should have heard that it's against the law to use Morse code in commercial broadcasting productions.

* * *

Do we really hear film celebrities when that "Hollywood Hotel" half hour is on the air, or merely the voices impersonated?? Doubtful, of Medford.

Real stars perform and the feature originates in Hollywood.

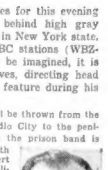
Was that really a young boy who worked with Fred Allen a week or so back? Uncertain, of Framingham.

Walter Tetley, a 13-years-old lad, takes part in the Allen airings quite often—anytime Fred can figure out a suitable place for him. Walter draws fan mail like a fire draws a crowd.

Address your Radio Questions to The Radio Editor, Boston Evening American, and the information you seek will be set forth here.

Switches will be thrown from the studios of Radio City to the penitentiary, where the prison band is to hold forth with a concert of selected holiday compositions, to conclude with "Holy Night." Warden Lawes promises a timely sketch called "The Christmas That changed" for his own program participation. It is gratifying to note such develop ment, since for a long time, perhaps too long a period, Warden Lawes has been a marked reluctance on the part of penal institution heads to permit broadcasting from within prison walls. All of which various wardens would justify on the basis of what they admit is a measure of uncertainty as to public reaction. However, at Christmas time it's a human gesture of high order. Hats off to Warden Lewis E. Lawes!



Warden Lawes

PICKFORD PRESENTATION

Drama of the southern mountains is to be presented tonight by Mary Pickford for airing (WEEI) tonight when 8 o'clock rolls around. Mary does "mike" duty with her company of supporting actors and actresses, the play being a piece called "Trigger" and comes over land and ozone from Hollywood studios in California.

Evan Evans and Rhoda Arnold, radio baritone and soprano respectively, devote their dial serenading to the chantry theme this evening (WAAB) as of 10:30 p. m. Howard Barlow directs his "Christmas Seal" orchestra throughout the 30 minutes to follow.

CLASSIC COMBINATION

Nino Martini, soloing tonight (WNAC) with the augmented Anson Weeks dance troupe, will contribute "Through the Years," as written by the contemporary American composer, Vincent Youmans.

* * *

Fred Allen figures to have a "Department Store" background when he presents "Hail Tonight" turns comes this evening (WEEI) on the stroke of 9 o'clock. From the bargain basement to the credit department, Phone of course, there's some the laughable news-reel re-enactment to anticipate, for all of the misinformation involved.

This Ear—That Air

By N. F. T.

Mid-week and the colorful cards begin to come. From folks everywhere imaginable, arriving in the first mail today. Again the flare for unique and original ideas is apparent. Anyone who subscribes strongly to the "nothing new under the sun" theory should have a square peek at a few of these greetings from radioland personalities. If space permits, another day will find brief descriptions of them set forth here. There'll be more in hand later this week.

"N. F. T."

Jackie Heller, first ushered to the notice of Broadway by Ben (Old Maestro) Bernie, is figuring on being a band boss himself. Jackie believes he can wield a baton in connection with his singing and make a go of it with loudpeaker patrons, incidentally, he is negotiating with the outfit left behind by Buddy Rogers, now on his way overseas to make movies in Merrie Old England.

Bountiful bouquets to the Boston radio artist fraternity for making splendid mention of the annual Christmas Basket Fund charity, as conducted under auspices of this newspaper. In that connection, a galaxy of studio folk are to appear in person at the Coconut Grove on Sunday night, while a special benefit and all around big time takes place. Proceeds are for the family Billy Payne, Adrian O'Brien, Alice O'Leary, Russell Dorr, Ethel Grenier, Andy Jacobsen, and last but not least Harry (Nick Parkyakakas) Einstein will be there. Getting together, they have elected to label themselves the "NFT Radio Group" which is no more than like them.

Thus and so it remains for the writer to think up something nice to say when introducing them on the floor. What a cinch to think of nice things to say about these performers! Jacques Renard phones to say his entire orchestra will happily provide adequate accompaniment. Drop in on us folks, there'll be fun aplenty and don't forget all the good to be done with the money thus obtained. Aw come on over!

FLEETING FLASHES

Guy Bates Post, of the decided voice personality, started with the Morton Downey half-hour launched last Sunday here is now to be replaced by Rod Arkell, if that name is familiar. Changing around so soon Kay—Tony Wons received fan mail from all over the world and his Chinese laundryman translates it, Kay—Bruce Barton, noted author and advertising mogul, in town airing a address from 1 to 1:30 today, through WBZ-WBZA channels, aiding the Emergency Campaign for 1935 . . .

G. A. R. Ordered to Give Up Property

Because only six G. A. R. veterans are left at the Chelsea Soldiers' Home, although 13 should be housed by the institution, Judge Edward P. Pierce of the Supreme Judicial Court ordered that the institution turn over all its property and assets, including its cash, its real estate and its cemetery lot in Forest Hills and Woodlawn to the Commonwealth.

HAUPTMANN, FRIEND LINKED IN ROBBERY

This is the ninth of a series of 12 articles on the forthcoming trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, alleged slayer of the Lindbergh baby.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Copyright, 1934, International News Service

Flemington, N. J., Dec. 19 (INS)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's past record is against him.

The iron-willed, close-mouthed man who goes on trial here on Jan. 2 is charged with the murder of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., is an ex-convict. He "did time" in jail in Germany before coming to the United States in 1923.

Over here he went to work as a carpenter, a job he held for about 10 years. He didn't come to the attention of the police in this country until he was arrested last September as a suspect in the Lindbergh case.

Hauptmann used the name of "Pellmeier" when he first tried to smuggle himself into the United States. The second time, when he was successful in getting in, he gave his right name.

The German police record of Hauptmann was recently made public by Attorney General Wilents. It showed that Hauptmann was implicated in nine different crimes and that on one occasion, taking part in a highway robbery at the age of twenty, he urged his companion to fire on two women who refused to stand still as he ordered.

Hauptmann, after being involved in various other crimes, was sentenced to two years, six months and one week at a trial in Bautzen on June 17, 1918. He received an additional sentence of two years and six months for highway robbery. This made a total sentence of five years and one week.

Hauptmann started to serve this sentence on July 9, 1919. Released on parole on March 30, 1923, he was subsequently questioned about three thefts of drive belts. He was turned over to the authorities again but escaped on June 20, 1923, while exercising in the jail yard. Later it was learned he had smuggled himself into the United States.

Tomorrow: Why the capture of Hauptmann was inevitable.

McCormack of Boston Leads Anti-Communist Move in Congress

COMMUNISTS in this country are of two breeds, the native-born and the alien interlopers, and they are EQUALLY enemies of the Republic.

Their own literature proclaims as much—not only in the language of Lenin and Stalin, but also in the illiterate Communist papers published here. During the last congressional campaign, an edition of the New York Daily Worker carried the blatant announcement that the Communist party is THE PARTY OF REVOLUTION.

If anti-Communists made an equivalent declaration in Communist Russia, they would be backed up against a prison wall and RUTHLESSLY SHOT TO DEATH. And exactly that sort of thing has been going on in Russia these last several days.

If it is TREASON to plot against an OPPRESSIVE tyranny in Russia, why is it not TREASON to plot against a FREE government by popular majority here in America?

We have been doing ourselves and the rest of the civilized world no service by tolerating and coddling in our country a set of enemies whom no nation on earth has any right to tolerate.

Our laws are grossly deficient in this respect.

UNDER the chairmanship of Representative McCormack, of Boston, the congressional committee on un-American activities now proposes to remedy somewhat this default in our legal system.

The next Congress will be asked to approve two exceedingly important measures:

1—"A law MAKING IT A CRIME to be affiliated with ANY ORGANIZATION dedicated to overthrow of the government by force."

2—Increased appropriations for the Department of Justice so that its agents may start A NATION-WIDE ROUND-UP of Communists and Nazis."

In the enactment and execution of these bills, let Congress and the executive government be thorough!

The Communist threat demands at least this much:

FIRST—That ALL FOREIGN-BORN COMMUNISTS, whether naturalized or not, shall be DEPORTED, on pain of LIFE-LONG IMPRISONMENT if they return; and SECOND—That ALL NATIVE-BORN COMMUNISTS shall be IMPRISONED and then and thereby DEPRIVED of the rights and privileges of American citizenship.

'War-Proof' the Nation

It Will Cost Money, But What of It?

Every conflagration about which we read is an object lesson in the need of fire prevention.

That is a lesson which prudent owners of houses or other buildings learned long ago, and which careless owners refuse to learn.

The wise man builds with fireproof or fire resistance materials if he can.

He covers heating pipes with asbestos, sees that electric cables are fully insulated, uses steel and concrete construction where possible, installs sprinklers, extinguishers and fire alarms and then probably tops off with fire insurance.

HE SLEEPS BETTER THAT WAY.

War is like fire, and the nation which refuses to protect itself by adequate "fire prevention" measures is like the careless owner of a building.

The best "fire prevention" measures for this country are a NAVY SECOND TO NONE, AN AIR FORCE SECOND TO NONE and an Army big enough to back up both the navy and the air force.

Those measures will cost money, but what of it?

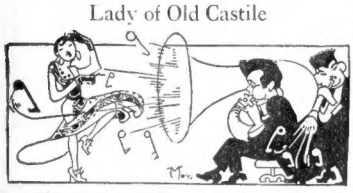
Is it wise to save money and lose the building, or spend money and safeguard the building?

That is the question for the United States to settle, and to settle soon.

At present it is NOT "fireproof," and the sparks from the next world conflagration WILL SPREAD.

Cuban 'Hotcha' Here

Lady of Old Castile



Cuban dancers predominate on America's waxed floors this season.

The senoritas clack their castanets, bang their red heels on the floor and twist their torsos as if they were winding themselves up on spools. Ditto the senors.

They pirouette to music that starts slow and melodious and finishes like a mad cat in a bag of sleigh bells. In every theater they whirl and turn like waltzing mice. In every cabaret they wiggle and squirm even as the devout dervish.

Yet, there must be a lady down in Cuba. There must be at least one black-eyed senorita down in Cuba whose gyrations are not synchronized with the tuba; there must be one so pretty and so dumba that she doesn't mix the fan dance with the rhumba, one who doesn't snap her fingers like a clapper while she rotates in her all-Havana wrapper.

If there is one dancer who clings to the proud Castilian legend as she glides dreamily across the floor, then she must be dancing by herself.

Cities Can Save

Newton Shows One Way

The interesting part of the announcement of Newton's plan to restore pay cuts to about 2000 of the Garden City's employes relates to a saving of around $100,000 a year.

Mayor Sinclair Weeks, a man of practical experience in financial affairs, explains the matter.

He finds the increase possible without much effect on the tax rate because about $100,000 a year has been saved through consolidating three of the city's public works departments.

Towns and cities of New England, what outworn departments have you that might be consolidated?

The taxpayers would be pleased to hear that Newton's saving move has been duplicated elsewhere.

Way to Aid Artists

By Hendrik Van Loon

Hendrik Van Loon

The Lord and his Ten Commandments and every newspaper and every magazine has a list of official "Don'ts" — of words that must never be printed.

I gave up playing Jehovah several weeks ago, and I don't own a newspaper. But if I were the censor-in-chief of this or any planet there is one expression which never would get by, and that is the expression "pet charity." I hate it and loathe it and abominate it, and I am happy to say that everybody to whom I have ever mentioned this dislike is most heartily on my side, and is willing to help me commit murder and mayhem whenever those two dreadful words occur.

"Mrs. P. de Schmaltz Vanderzylch loves to do bubble-dancing for the headlines, which is her pet charity." Or "at last night's dance Mrs. P. de Zylch van der Schmaltz wore her diamonds for the free lodging house, which is her pet charity."

IT'S BAD ENOUGH

I am willing to shut one or both eyes to "pet poodle" and "pet husband," but save us from "pet charity!"

God knows, it is bad enough for the poor devils who have to sleep in lodging houses and stand for hours in a breadline to accept our bounty. But don't make it any harder by reminding them that they are objects of some person's "pet charity."

This outburst (with due apologies to all poodles, who are nice and intelligent animals and can't help the way they are tonsorialled by their owners) might never have occurred if I had not been invited to contribute a little money to some kind lady's "pet charity," and if that particular "pet charity" had not struck me as the most senseless waste of money of which I have heard for a long time.

Of course people are always doing things for poets. And poetry being what it is, I am sure that somebody should occasionally do something for a poet. But this time we were going to give poetry such a boost that Mount Parnassus would look like a mole-hill.

For we were going to collect a million dollars (which is a lot of money these days) and invest it in AAA1 securities, and out of the income every deserving young poet was going to receive an annual stipend of five thousand dollars, so that he wouldn't have anything to do all day long, but just write the swellest poetry, and never a thought about the butcher or the baker or the landlord's monthly reminder.

REAL POETESS

The appeal to my "magnanimity" (the first time I saw that word typed in 35 years) was signed by a most imposing array of charitable persons of the female gender.

Some of them were actual poetesses in their own name, for they were possessed of paps whose pocketbooks made it possible for them to get their stuff into print.

They were trying to make the status of the artist just a little more difficult in our beloved Republic than it has been so far.

My friends, I know whereof I speak. I have gone through the mill. It was a terrible trip.

Occasionally we got a helping hand, and we shall never cease to be grateful, for without that we would have slipped and died. I am not talking about encouragement and sympathetic understanding and a free meal once in a while. They were indispensible.

But a steady annual income of five thousand berries—rain or shine, in drunkenness or sobriety—would have killed every spark of genuine inspiration. It would have turned us into amateurs. And that would have been the end.

There is a perfectly sound and sensible way in which the public can help the artist. Let it buy his pictures and his poems and his compositions and his statuary, instead of wasting millions on the pictures and statues and compositions of people who have been dead and buried these last two thousand years.

That money serves no purpose except to enrich the art dealers, for the creators of these treasures are beyond all mortal help.

Art in our country could be lifted out of its ignominious position if our rich people would have the courage of their artistic convictions and would buy the art of the living instead of the dead.

But spare art this last insult. Do not allow it to degenerate into somebody's "pet charity."

Mining Mammoth Tusks in the Ice

By Edwin C. Hill

The Globe Trotter of Hearst Metrotone News

It was in 1925 that the Soviet government first became really interested in a valuable "balance brought forward" from the Pleistocene age. They began mining mammoth tusks in their far northern islands. Now it is becoming an industry.

When the far northern six-months' day begins next spring, scientists, engineers and workmen will be up on the North Siberian Islands staking out the government ivory hunt in a big way.

To date, they have marketed the tusks from about 30,000 mammoths. The tusks of the male mammoth, dug for a few millenia in the ice, take on a delicate bluish tint—not, however, the blue translucence of the ice, but a mineral coloration. They make ivory somewhat like turquoise, more valuable than elephant tusk ivory.

A prehistoric Siberian could have ordered grilled mammoth steak and waited fifty thousand years for it. In 1908 Russian explorers at Obyuchi dug out of the ice a hairy mammoth, nicely refrigerated and quite edible.

The scientists cooked and ate some of the meat. They said it was passable and quite adequate to sustain life.

Since then many mammoths have been uncovered in a good state of preservation, not only in the North Siberian Islands, including Wrangel Island, but in our own Alaska, where mining the "Yankee Elephant" also is becoming quite an industry. H. A. Bryden rounds up "The Mystery of the Mammoths" in Chambers' Journal, of London. He says:

"Tusks remain in these regions numbers of these great pachyderms, frozen in amid the glaciers, cliffs and tundras. Specimens occasionally come to light, thawing out gradually in process of ages; their flesh, as fresh as when they first were immured in their ice chambers, is devoured by bears, wolves, foxes and even human beings.

"The hardy tribal hunters of Northeast Siberia have long since discovered that these huge carcases are valuable, and their ivory most of all, and tusks and specimens are eagerly sought for along that frozen coast.

"It is possible that mammoth ivory will still be found in the world's markets long after African and Indian elephants have vanished from the scene.

"Siberian mammoth ivory realizes in the London market from 563 to $750 per hundredweight. Alaskan tusks are much weathered, are fragile and split easily, and are, in consequence, not nearly as valuable as the Siberian specimens."

The mammoths were from twelve to fourteen feet high. The Geological Museum of Mexico City has the longest pair of tusks, measuring sixteen feet six inches.

The south-bound ice wall of the Pleistocene age herded the mammoths clear down into New York state. We have the Temple Hill mastadon, with tusks eight feet six inches long, found near Newburgh, and the Cohoes mastodon, found near Albany.

Mammoths were the steady diet of primitive man in France and Spain.

The mammoth is of the same family as the elephant, but not an ancestor. Both branch off from the same family, with a relationship perhaps somewhat closer than that of Franklin D. Roosevelt to Theodore Roosevelt.

One of the mysteries of science is the disappearance of the mammoth from North America, where he lived over a wide range of frozen tundra.

Soviet Russia, waxing big among modern states, may study its mammoth and ponder what happens to mere bigness. Small contenders in the life free-for-all seem to last longer. Biologists say insects will yet conquer the world, but the mamouth long since has been counted out.

AFTERWORDS

It seemed I heard them talking, and he said,
"Life looks so different to me now I'm dead!

"I thought it was important to be proud
And win the adulation of the crowd

"I had a home—you know how mortals are—
I thought with them that pleasure dwelt afar.

"I see today, no doubt with clearer eyes,
That happiness is not of cost and size.

"That health and love and home and children small
Are all that life can offer to us all;

"That friendships true outlive the stormy years
Long after every stranger disappears.

"And now I'm dead, and seem to understand
How simply life's best happiness is planned.

"So much is vain for which mad mortals strive.
I wish I'd only known it while alive."

The Communist Program of World Revolution

"The conquest of power by the proletariat is the VIOLENT ABOLITION of the power of the bourgeoisie, the DESTRUCTION of the MACHINERY of the capitalist state.

"WE proclaim openly that our design can only be realized by the VIOLENT OVERTHROW of the ENTIRE TRADITIONAL social order."

[The above policies were formally adopted and promulgated as the Communist program by the Sixth Congress of the Kommintern of the Communists' Internationale, which was held in 1928 in Moscow.]

What About the Banks?

By ROBERT H. HEMPHILL

Financial Authority

IN their hurried efforts to suppress an initial and vindictive outburst some of the diplomatic speakers at the ABA convention in Washington made no effort to conceal the fact that at least a fraction of the banking fraternity has persistently antagonized the President's efforts to lift the nation from this unhappy depression.

To the student of finance there is no mystery in the complete failure of the Government's vast spending program to visibly advance recovery. The whole story is unmistakably exhibited in a comparison of the consolidated statement of all banks of the nation as of June 30, 1934, with the similar date of 1933.

DURING this period the Administration has put into circulation something like 5000 millions of additional credit.

If this additional credit were still in circulation it would, of course, show as a 5000 million-dollar increase in net demand deposits in our commercial banks.

Instead of showing such an increase, or any increase, they show a small decrease.

The total net demand deposits of all banks on June 30, 1933, was 15,288 millions of dollars. (a) On June 30, 1934, the total net demand deposits was 14,881 millions of dollars, (b) a credit contraction of 400 millions.

Where is this 5000 millions of new credit?

THE answer is simple, but it goes directly to the heart of our increasing unemployment — our deepening depression.

Despite the President's efforts to prime the economic pump by lavish public expenditure, the banks have continued to press the collection of their loans, and by this procedure have withdrawn credit from circulation a trifle faster than the Administration has injected it.

This new credit circulated until it came into the hands of someone who owed a bank, and the bank immediately seized it.

The net effect is that not only have our vast expenditures been rendered futile, but the taxpayers of the nation are stuck for 5000 millions to pay off that amount of slow bank loans.

Had this new credit remained in circulation it would have increased the annual diversified transactions of the nation 180,000 millions of dollars, resulting in a net increase of 15,000 millions in the annual national income.

AT the present low wage level, this increased purchasing power, averaging approximately $500 per family, should have returned six millions to seven millions of the eleven millions of idle workmen to industry.

There is nothing encouraging in the widely published last-minute expressions of the "new spirit of co-operation" by which some of the articulate big city bankers, apprehensive of coming sweeping legislation, are seeking to delay the redesign of this important mechanism which has so signally failed us. It is not a question of disposition.

The recent report of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee says:

"America's banking system is outmoded, archaic and incapable of performing functions essential to the economic safety and national welfare.

"Prescient basic banking reforms are necessary. Reformation and correction in retrospect of comparative trivialities will not suffice."
